

Nixon Has Assigned Agnew to Expanded Domestic Policy Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seeking to put his White House in order, President Nixon has assigned Vice President Spiro T. Agnew an expanded role in the formulation of domestic policy, it was learned today.

At an hour-long meeting Tuesday, Nixon assigned Agnew to a new position as vice chairman of the Domestic Council at the White House.

Although this will involve the vice president more deeply in policy deliberations on the domestic front, sources said he was in no way taking on the functions of John D. Ehrlichman, domestic policy assistant who resigned Monday.

Part of Agnew's new duties, it was said, would involve liaison work with governors and local officials, putting him back in a field from which he was removed in Nixon's second-term reorganization.

Agnew's new role came to light shortly before former Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, a potential rival for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination, announced in Houston his switch from the Democratic to Republican party.

A restructuring of the White House staff, made necessary by the resignations of Ehrlichman and chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, was the subject of presidential discussions Tuesday with Agnew and at a 30-minute Cabinet meeting.

"It's a meeting that has to be seen as important," a White House source said. "We can assume that the subject dealt with the future more than such things as Watergate."

A participant in the Cabinet meeting said Kenneth R. Cole, executive director of the Domestic Council, will take over some of the duties handled by Ehrlichman and eventually may replace him.

It was also reported that Stephen B. Bull, assistant to the President, has taken on added duties in short-term scheduling and paper flow. It is not considered likely that he will replace Haldeman — but rather that the chief of staff's duties may be taken over in part by the Office of Management and Budget.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman were seen leaving the White House Tuesday carrying stacks of documents, even as the FBI mounted a 'round-the-clock guard in offices containing Watergate-related files.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the guard was posted "to physically protect the files to make sure that access and removal of any files were supervised in accordance with very strict procedure." He said FBI agents checked everything removed by the two resigned aides.

White House sources said that before Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned, they inspected government files, seeking documentation for their claims of innocence. The search apparently resulted from news accounts that fired presidential Counsel John W. Dean III was prepared to give investigators documents relating to an alleged White House coverup of Watergate.

Meanwhile, The New York Times today quoted sources as saying six former high-level figures are expected to be indicted in connection with the alleged coverup.

The Times identified the six as Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Dean, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, deputy Nixon campaign director Jeb Stuart Magruder, and Frederick C. LaRue, a special assistant to Mitchell when the latter was Nixon's campaign chief.

It was disclosed in Los Angeles that Ehrlichman learned last year that Watergate conspirators E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy broke into the office of Pentagon papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Ehrlichman was interviewed by the FBI in his office last Friday. He said Liddy and Hunt were assigned to investigate leaks of the Pentagon papers and went to the West Coast to prepare a "psychiatric profile" relating to Ellsberg.

"He was not told that these two individuals had broken into the premises of the psychiatrist for Ellsberg until after this incident had taken place," the FBI report said. "Such activity was not authorized by him, he did not know about this burglary until after it had happened. He did not agree with this method of investigation and when he learned about the burglary he instructed them 'not to do this again.'"

It was learned the special Senate committee on Watergate is considering granting immunity from prosecution to both Dean and Magruder, who reportedly knew in advance of plans to wiretap the Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate building.

Magruder refused Tuesday to give pretrial testimony in the Democrats' lawsuit over Watergate and his lawyer said it was because the Watergate grand jury is expected to return indictments.

In his speech on Watergate Monday, President Nixon said he had given Atty. Gen.-designate Elliot L. Richardson authority to name a special prosecutor in the affair.

The Senate, on a voice vote with only a handful of members present Tuesday, urged the President to do just that. A later move by Republicans to reconsider the vote—on grounds that it was an expression of no-confidence in the President—failed.

In other developments:

—White House Press Secretary Ziegler publicly apologized to The Washington Post for harsh statements he made against the newspaper for its intensive investigation of Watergate. "I was over-enthusiastic in my comments" he said.

Demand Disclosure Of Watergate Links

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defense attorneys in the Pentagon papers trial, accusing former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman of trying to bribe the trial judge, have demanded that any Watergate or White House links to the trial be made public.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, rejected on Tuesday a government request to keep from the press further developments in a continuing court-ordered probe. He said he would make public any documents relevant to the trial.

Attorneys for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo asked for dismissal of the indictments against them after the government revealed that Ehrlichman knew two Watergate conspirators had burglarized the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971.

The defense also cited an Ehrlichman contact with Byrne on April 5 at the Western White House where Byrne said earlier he was told he was in line for a high "future assignment in government," reportedly the directorship of the FBI.

Although Byrne said he had refused to consider any offer until after the trial, the defense motion called it "possibly an attempt to offer a bribe to the court—an attempt made in the virtual presence of the President of the United States which was frustrated only because the judge refused to listen to the offer."

Ellsberg and Russo are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in the copying of the secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war, which Ellsberg subsequently leaked to the press in 1971.

Arguing against a secrecy rule, defense attorney Leonard Boudin said the court's probe of Watergate connections had been aided by publicity.

He cited a published story in the Washington Evening Star-News as saying one of the Watergate conspirators billed the White House for four hours' work the day of the break-in at Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

The story said Watergate prosecutors have airline tickets showing two of the conspirators were in Los Angeles at the time of the break-in.

He contended the newspapers are disclosing relevant facts in more detail than the government.

The disclosure spurred the judge to announce he would not allow the case to go to the jury until all White House and Watergate links are investigated and analyzed. He held the dismissal motion under consideration.

The latest disclosures came in an FBI memo about an interview with Ehrlichman last Friday, in which the White House aide said he had been asked by President Nixon to make an independent investigation of the Pentagon papers leak to news media.

Ehrlichman said in the interview that Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt Jr., were hired for the job. He said he knew that the two were trying to produce a "psychiatric profile" of Ellsberg seeking to show that Ellsberg had "emotional and moral problems."

Ehrlichman said he knew Hunt and Liddy were making trips to the West Coast to develop this profile. But he said he was not told of the break-in at the psychiatrist's office until afterwards.

When he learned of the burglary, the report said, Ehrlichman told Hunt and Liddy "not to do this again." The report said Ehrlichman doesn't know whether anything was obtained from the Beverly Hills office of Dr. Lewis Fielding. He gave no information on whether such psychiatric records were used in prosecution of Ellsberg.

Nine Homes Destroyed

KAHOKA, Mo. (AP) — Nine persons remained hospitalized today from a tornado that smashed into this northeastern Missouri town Tuesday night, killing two persons and injuring 18.

The Clark County sheriff's office here said residents were attempting to salvage belongings from nine homes that were destroyed and 11 others that were damaged.

The twister took the lives of a 15-month-old boy and a woman.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Lenora Hunsiker, about 50, rural Kahoka, and Daniel Ralph, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Roy Ralph of Kahoka.

Nine persons were hospitalized. Four were taken to a hospital at nearby Memphis, Mo., and five to a hospital at Keokuk, Iowa, just across the state line.

The twister was one of many that rumbled across Missouri Tuesday night,

Officials Compiling New Flood Figures

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Officials of the river district office of the National Weather Service were compiling new figures today which were expected to be the basis for new crest forecasts for the Mississippi River following heavy rains in northern Missouri, Iowa and Illinois.

A river district office spokesman said Tuesday night that the crests, which will be forecast today, are compiled on the basis of rainfall reports. North of St. Louis, crests were issued Tuesday for the Mississippi River at Hannibal, Mo., and Quincy, Ill.

"I'm afraid the river stage forecasts will have to be revised," Mel Doernhoefer, Corps of Engineers spokesman, said.

"Any amount of rainfall with the ground already super-saturated could run off and reverse the downward trend of the rivers. Our record floods in the past have been in June and July," Doernhoefer said.

The Mississippi is to rise for the fourth time this spring and reach 25-foot levels Thursday at Hannibal and Quincy. The river was marked at 23.8 feet at Hannibal Tuesday where flood stage is 16 feet, and was at 23.4 feet at Quincy where flood stage is 17 feet.

"Definitely, no one should relax and decide it's all over," Doernhoefer said. "That's a very serious concern of ours."

A river district spokesman said Tuesday night that it could not yet be determined if the heavy rains which dumped 1 to 3 inches of water on Iowa and Illinois Tuesday would push the rivers over the record crests set last week.

"It will take appreciably more rain than has already been reported to bring the rivers up to levels that will approach the recent record crests," the spokesman said.

Tornado Kills Two, Injures 18 causing widespread damage to farm and out buildings.

The Kahoka tornado damaged two homes at the southwest edge of town and then slashed into the Armstrong Trailer Court.

Eight trailers were demolished and four others were severely damaged. Investigators said Mrs. Hunsiker was visiting her daughter and son-in-law in the court when the twister hit.

The Ralph boy died when the tornado destroyed his parents' trailer. His body was found among the rubble after his parents had been taken to the Keokuk hospital.

The condition of those hospitalized was not immediately available. Several injured persons were treated at doctors' offices in Kahoka.

Elsewhere, the Missouri Highway Patrol said it had a report of a tornado near Lancaster, Mo., about 45 miles west of Kahoka, but no details on it.

Another twister destroyed barns and other outbuildings on two farms near Corder, about 50 miles east of Kansas City. A registered bull was killed on the Donald Fisher farm.

A tornado struck in an open field near Rocky Mount, on the Gravois arm of the Lake of the Ozarks, but did no damage.

Heavy rains in the watershed of the Little Platte River Tuesday sent that stream out of its banks. The river was expected to crest six feet above flood stage at Smithville.

The Grand River was expected to be five feet above flood stage near Gallatin.

Rainfall reports included 3.83 inches in Plattsburg, 2.30 in Bethany, and 3.01 in Trimble.

Nixon, Advisers Meet

Tightening of Phase 3 Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon met today for 40 minutes with his top economic advisers and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew amid reports that some tightening of Phase 3 wage-price controls appears likely.

Some administration officials hinted at stronger enforcement moves to halt galloping inflation. But Nixon advisers in recent days have ruled out any new wage-price freeze and rigid, mandatory controls.

There was no indication what was discussed at today's session. Agnew was a surprise addition to the conferees. Others attending were Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz; Budget Director Roy Ash; Hebert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns; Dr. John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, and Kenneth Cole, director of the Domestic Council.

The President called in his key economic advisers after being granted another year of wage-price control authority.

Nixon also scheduled a session with the Labor-Management Advisory Committee, a panel of five labor and five business leaders named to advise him on wage-price controls.

Although prices have been increasing in recent months, at the fastest rate in 22 years, Nixon has resisted stepping in with strong new wage-price controls to combat the new burst of inflation.

His advisers say that the kind of inflation the nation is experiencing cannot be affected by controls.

Much of the general price rise has been caused by price boosts in food, energy, and internationally traded commodities affected by the dollar devaluation, and short supplies of some goods, his advisers have said.

"Controls are not an appropriate way to deal with supply shortages," said William Walker, general counsel for the Cost of Living Council. "We cannot repeal the law of supply and demand."

Walker and Edgar Fielder, assistant secretary of the Treasury for economic policy, said the nation is undergoing a price bulge that should, for the most part, be over by the middle of the year.

Fielder said the rate of rise in food prices should level off during the final three months of the year.

Congress considered, but rejected, a new freeze, rent controls, and price rollbacks when it extended the President's power to control wages and prices for another year, to April 30, 1974.

House Fails To Take Any Action on ERA

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House wrestled with a resolution to adopt the equal rights amendment to the U. S. Constitution for two hours today but failed to take action.

The House adjourned until 2:30 p.m. and was expected to resume debate on the resolution.

Rep. Gladys Marriott, D-Kansas City, introduced an amendment to allow a vote of Missourians on the issue. A move to table her amendment was defeated 57-97.

Tabling her amendment would have meant the entire resolution would have been temporarily shelved, preventing a vote on it.

Mrs. Marriott's amendment would submit the resolution to a vote of the people following approval by the legislature. If defeated by the people the measure would be voided.

Rep. James Baker, D-Kansas City, noted the amendment was unconstitutional because the U.S. Constitution had delegated approval of constitutional amendments to the state legislatures.

Other representatives said voting for the amendment was a "shirking of duty" and a "gutless" attempt to kill the resolution without taking a vote on the resolution as introduced.

A Senate committee voted early in the session against reporting the resolution out of committee.

"I think the resolution, after surviving four months of (House) committee, deserves a straight up or down vote," said Rep. Steve Vossmeier, D-St. Louis.

Rep. David Reed, R-Kansas City, took issue with "being accused of cowardice" for supporting the amendment.

"We are talking about a bill that reaches into the heart of the family, and into the heart of the American legal system," he said, adding the people had a right to voice their opinion.

Connally Switches To Republican Party

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — John B. Connally made his long-expected switch from the Democratic to the Republican party today but said, "I seek no office, political or appointive."

The former secretary of the Treasury — considered a strong potential candidate for the GOP presidential candidate in 1976 — said he has not discussed any possible assignment in the Nixon administration.

He said the Democratic party "has become more fragmented than at any time in my life. It has moved so far to the left that it has left many Americans."

The longtime Democrat said the timing of his announcement had nothing to do with the Watergate scandal.

"There has been a great deal of speculation by the media and I frankly was getting tired of it and I believe the average American was getting tired of it too," he said.

"It just happens to come in the midst of Watergate, but there is no reason for my acting or failing to act now."

The 56-year-old Connally called the Watergate affair "a sordid mess."

Ann Landers

Peculiar Quirk Is Form of Sickness

Dear Ann Landers: After reading the letter signed "Low In California" I am moved to write my first letter to a columnist.

I faced the same problem — a husband who refused to bathe or change his underwear for weeks at a time — and I hope "Low" will listen when I tell her to follow her instincts and "do something about it." I speak from more than 50 years of first-hand experience.

Like "Low," I stuck it out because "he was such a good guy." But after so many years of being left in a state of indescribable tension and being torn between love and hate, I know what a foolish mistake I made. Now my nervous system is shattered beyond repair and I am in no condition to make a move. I hope every woman who reads this and has a husband with his peculiar behavioral quirk will insist that he get professional help (he is sick) or dissolve the marriage.

These days a woman has a good many more options than were available 50 years ago. It's too late for me, but it's not too late for her. I wish the lady much success. — High And Dry In St. Pete

Dear H and D In St. Pete: I had no idea how many women had this problem until I printed the first letter about it several years ago. Since then I have received hundreds — maybe thousands — of cries for help from wives who, like you, were torn between love and hate.

Psychiatrists say this is a deep-seated and complicated illness, but it can be cured, and if a man loves his wife he will try. No woman should have to sleep with a husband who smells like a goat.

Dear Ann Landers: I am eagerly awaiting my 18th birthday so I can legally escape the clutches of a lousy home life. I know my folks will suffer a great deal when I go, but they are asking for it. I want to leave home so I can be independent, free to make my own decisions and learn from my mistakes.

My dad says I am to spend the next four years of my life living at home and commuting to a nearby university — which does not interest me at all. If I refuse Dad's offer he will not give me money to go to any other school. Also, he will consider my "lack of cooperation" a slap in the face.

I see no alternative except to leave home and work my way through college. I know it will take a few years longer but I am willing to do it.

Please tell parents that it is their job to help their children grow, to prepare them for a life of their own, to encourage individuality and strength. Children need support, not ultimatums. — My Own Person

Dear Person: If you'd rather work your way through college and be on your own, I see no reason for your parents to hold it against you. Nor should you hold it against them because they refuse to finance your four years of college away from home. (It just might be they can't afford it. Do you have any idea what it costs?)

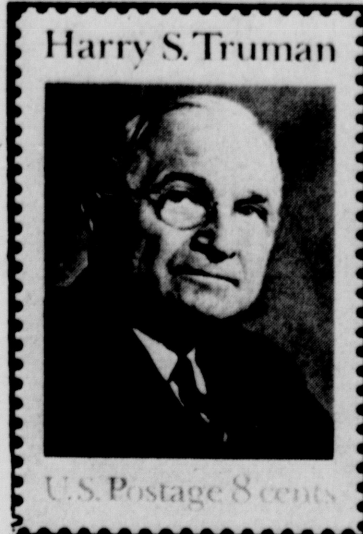

My guess is that after you've flown the coop, you'll have a lot more respect for your parents. And the comforts you now take for granted will take in a whole new meaning. Good luck to you, dear.

Klassen, U.S. postmaster general, will be on hand for the activities.

Police, Firemen Plan Seminar

The first step towards establishing a special accident-preparedness unit composed of Sedalia firemen and police officers will be taken in the form of a seminar at 9 a.m. Thursday at the fire station at 2606 West 16th. It was announced Tuesday by Fire Chief Willis Jabas and Police Chief William Miller.

"We hope to coordinate the efforts of the fire department and police department to provide better and more efficient service in time of need," Jabas said. "We have equipment they (the police department) don't have and they have some we don't have. We each hope to learn more about the other's equipment."

Assistant Police Chief Charles Knapp said Thursday's meeting, which will be attended by members of both the fire and police departments, will center around an explanation of the police department's "porto power" equipment and the fire department's "rescue saw."

The "porto power" device is a hydraulic jack which can raise or separate wrecked cars with maximum speed and minimum damage, Knapp explained. The fire department's rescue saw, Jabas said, is a specially-designed saw which can be used to cut through glass, metal or other substances.

Miller said a wrecked car, donated by McCown Brother's Salvage, will be used in demonstrating the equipment.

Also scheduled to attend the seminar are eight members of a State Fair Community College class in emergency care and transportation. The class is taught by Mrs. Foster McGuire.

Need Curbs On Bigger Cars

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The automobile industry should curb production of high-powered cars in view of fuel shortages and crowded highway conditions, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said here Tuesday night.

Nelson, one of the leading consumer advocates in Congress, told the National Association of Environment Educators that automakers don't want to build small cars because the profit is greater on bigger autos.

"We can't afford the gasoline consumption" of bigger cars, Nelson said. "And our highways are already getting filled."

Nelson, who received an award from the association for his work in improving the environment, also was critical of allowing continued use of pesticides and herbicides without prior testing.

"People have been 'medicated' by them for years without anyone knowing the effects," Nelson said. "One of the leading questions that will be coming up this year will be: Are we going to permit the indiscriminate introduction of these toxic agents into the environment without first requiring studies to determine their effects on health and ramifications on the environment?"

The senator said that researchers in Vietnam have just started finding evidence that chemicals used in the war were accumulating in the livers and fatty tissues of fish.

At present, more than 60 per cent of the Newfoundland government's revenue comes from the Canadian federal government.

Protein Overdose Is Not Possible

Dear Dr. Lamb — In one of your recent columns you gave some information on protein powders. I have been using one of them and have been wondering — is it possible to get too much protein in your diet? How much protein would a person need to maintain health?

The product I have been using contains 47 per cent protein, 41 per cent carbohydrates, 6 per cent moisture, 3.4 per cent fat, and 2.5 per cent fiber. 21 calories per teaspoon (280 calories per 100 grams).

I have been taking a total of 12 teaspoons a day in three glasses of milk (four teaspoons per glass).

I'm 31 years old — 5-foot 2½-inches and my weight is 115 pounds. I've just been wondering if this may be too much protein or fat for me and if too much protein can be toxic or harmful (like too much vitamin A or D).

So far I seem to get a lot of energy from this drink, which I need with two little children to care for. I would appreciate your comments on this matter.

Dear Reader — It's unlikely that you will be getting too much protein. If you needed to lose weight, then a large amount of excess protein might actually add to your calorie intake and contribute to your weight problem. Most people don't realize that protein in excess of what the body needs is simply converted to carbohydrate and then stored as glycogen (body starch) or as fat. One hundred grams of ordinary mixed protein is converted to 58 grams of carbohydrate by the body.

The foods we eat consist primarily of carbon and hydrogen, and they are formed in long carbon chains. Proteins are made up of amino acids which are the building blocks of proteins. The amino acids are carbon chains attached to an ammonia group (hence the term amino) which contains nitrogen. The liver simply strips off this ammonia group and what's left is a carbon chain which may not be greatly dissimilar from a carbohydrate carbon chain or a fat carbon chain.

The body is pretty clever; it can take this ammonia group and transfer it to the carbon chain that comes from carbohydrate or fat and form new amino acids. The body is able to manufacture a variety of the amino acids it needs for building new protein and body structures. The body is able to manufacture all the amino acids we need from mixed protein of any type, except the eight or 10 essential amino acids.

So individuals who eat large amounts of protein, particularly if they are getting calories of other types as well in their diet, are merely adding excess calories to the diet, which can in turn contribute to the problem of obesity.

There is no danger of getting too much protein in the same sense that you can get too much vitamin A or vitamin D. Individuals who have serious liver disease, and sometimes kidney disease, may be placed on a protein restricted diet. But these are rare medical conditions and require constant medical supervision. So I don't think you need to worry about that problem.

In summary, there is nothing wrong with the protein powder that you are taking for your purposes. For many other people I would suggest that before they go overboard on using protein powders that it be remembered that protein powders can be converted to carbohydrate, and a carbohydrate is a carbohydrate whether it comes from a protein, sugar, honey or flour. (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Grape Crop Is Pushed In Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A lone Israeli agricultural expert is pioneering Kenya's grape industry and the results, he says, are vineyards comparable to Europe or the Middle East.

Gadi Schalit says grapes are not easily grown in the equatorial climate of East Africa. But by adopting elaborate pruning methods the climatic disadvantages can be overcome.

"The performance has been quite good ... as good as one could expect in France or Israel," he said, discussing one experimental crop.

The grapes now being grown are mainly table grapes. "Wine grapes will come later," says Schalit.

Grapes from Greece and Egypt now sell for about $1.50 a pound in Kenya's groceries and markets. If the Kenyan grape industry can be commercially developed, it would be an economic blessing to the country's farmers.

"Even an African small-holder farmer who grows grapes on a one-acre plot can get rich very quickly. All it requires is an intensive input of work," he says.

So far the riches have not yet come, because most of the grapes have been for experimental use. But at least one of the agricultural stations has yielded crops of more than 700 tons per acre.

DEATH NOTICES

Mrs. Anna L. Purnell

Mrs. Anna L. Purnell, 81, 1601 East 10th, died at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Fairview Nursing Home.

Born Sept. 29, 1891, at Nelson, she was the daughter of the late Dan and Mary Adalene Pirtle Dickens. She was married to John Phillips, who preceded her in death, Aug. 10, 1959. She was married to Oscar Purnell, who died Nov. 30, 1970.

Mrs. Purnell spent her early life in Saline County. A member of Epworth United Methodist Church, she belonged to the Graham Circle of that church and was a member of the Pacific Women's Club.

Survivors include one son, Dan Phillips, 1601 East 10th; a daughter, Mrs. Adaline Terrell, Pasadena, Calif.; two sisters, Mrs. Martha Murray, Kansas City; Mrs. Mary Vuilcott, Columbia; two grandsons and eight great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Eugene Trice officiating.

Music will be provided by Mrs. Della Berthouex, organist, and Wendell Smith, soloist.

Pallbearers will be James McCollough, W. A. McVey, Roy Lane, L. F. Rittermeyer, Dan Murray and Joe Murray.

Burial will be in the Salem Cemetery, east of Sedalia.

The family will receive friends at the funeral chapel from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Wilma Williams

Mrs. Wilma Naomi Williams, 63, 406 North Stewart, died at 10 p.m. Tuesday at Bothwell Hospital.

She was born March 10, 1910, at LaCross, daughter of the late John and Grace Bunce Agee. She was married to Evert Williams at LaPlata, and he survives, of the home.

She was a member of Villa Heights Christian Church, Joplin. The family moved from Joplin to Kansas City in 1953, and came to Sedalia in 1961.

Also surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Robert (Evelyn) Tempelton, 2805 West 11th; Mrs. Robert (Medora) Arnold, Joplin; one brother, James Agee, Key West, Fla.; one sister, Mrs. Harv (Ellena) Easley, Mason City, Iowa; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Richard Leach officiating.

Burial will be Saturday afternoon in Joplin.

Alvin Hughes

Alvin Hughes, 40, 120 East Jefferson, died at the Columbia Veterans Administration Hospital Tuesday.

He is survived by three brothers, John Hughes, Jr., and Robert Hughes, Kansas City; Paul Hughes, Jacksonville, Fla.; and three uncles and three aunts.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. The body is at the Allen and Son Funeral Home.

Cue A. Higdon

Funeral services for Cue A. Higdon, 54, Hartsburg, Mo., who died at his home Monday night, will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Thursday. The Rev. James Lee McCoy, Hartsburg, will officiate.

Russell McFatrach, soloist, will be accompanied by Mrs. Clyde Waters at the organ.

Pallbearers will be Raymond Newell, Jake Klein, Gordon Callis, Logan Siegel, Ernest Biggs and Stanley Ulmer.

Burial will be in the Providence Cemetery.

The body is at the funeral home where the family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Cora Dell Bechtel

TIPTON — Funeral services for Cora Dell Bechtel, 76, who died at 2:30 p.m. Monday in Jefferson City, will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Conn Funeral Home here with the Rev. J. Charles Tedder officiating.

Burial will be in the Glenstead Cemetery, south of Fortuna.

Willie H. Patterson

VERSAILLES — Willie H. Patterson, 77, died at 2:55 a.m. Wednesday at Bothwell Hospital.

He was born Nov. 3, 1895, son of the late William and Mary Papen Patterson at Linn Creek. On Dec. 21, 1919, he married Velma Green, who survives, of the home.

A retired employee of the State Highway Department, he was a veteran of World War I and a member of the Christian Church.

Also surviving are two sons, Edwin Patterson, Independence; Joe Patterson, Harton, Kan.; six daughters, Mrs. Hazel Scott, Gravois Mills; Mrs. Ruth Caviness, Reedley, Calif.; Mrs. Dorothy Waisner, 1515 South Washington; Mrs. Freda Laughnunn, Peoria, Ill.; Mrs. Billie Hibdon, Hawaii; Mrs. Mary Lou Pipes, Versailles; one brother, Ernest Patterson, Jefferson City; three sisters, Mrs. Emma Stamper, Linn Creek; Mrs. Jessie Francis and Mrs. Grace Mew, both of Kansas City; 21 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at Kidwell-Garber Funeral Home, Versailles, with the Rev. Jimmy Kruse officiating.

Burial will be in the Versailles Cemetery.

Decorated Bikes To Go on Parade

A bicycle parade, originally scheduled for April 14, will get underway here at 10 a.m. this Saturday, a spokesman for the Noon Optimist Club said.

The bikes, which should be decorated in order to participate in competition for prizes for the best-decorated bike, will assemble on the parking lot of the First Baptist Church.

A bicycle safety inspection will be made on the parking lot of the Pettis County Courthouse following the parade. Law enforcement officials, including Police Chief William Miller, Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and Gary Fleming, prosecuting attorney, will address the bike riders on bicycle safety. Harry Walch, presiding judge of the Pettis County Court, will also address the group.

The parade and competition are open to all age levels and adults are urged to participate, it was reported.

Forfeit $50 Bonds In Sedalia Court

Two Sedalia women, charged with shoplifting $20 worth of food from Bing's United Supermarket, 14th and Limit, Wednesday forfeited separate $50 bonds in Municipal Court.

Jerry R. Bryson, 178 Colonial Lane, and Joyce A. Grose, 3601 South Grand, were stopped Monday afternoon by Dale Cairer, an employee of the supermarket, who said they had two packages of lobsters that they did not pay for, police said.

Nixon

"When we're wrong, we're wrong. I was in that case."

—The federal grand jury on Watergate heard from "a very important witness," assistant prosecutor Seymour Glanzer said. Other Justice Department sources said indictments in the case are not imminent.

—Former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said that, if President Nixon were involved in Watergate, he would prefer not to hear about it. "I am totally confident the President just would not be involved in any way in this kind of operation," Laird told reporters in Washington. "But, if he were, it would be very bad for the country—that kind of disclosure."

—Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina told a news conference that he believes Nixon had no advance knowledge of the break-in and bugging of Democratic headquarters. But, he added, "If the President was part of a conspiracy of that kind, then I could see where impeachment proceedings would be brought."

—Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, who handed in his resignation Monday on grounds several friends may be implicated in Watergate, told a Law Day audience in Washington that Americans should not despair, because "we are a country of law ... and the law works its will."

—Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate committee probing Watergate, complimented Nixon for facing up publicly to the scandal of the case.

—John Mitchell, while attorney general, went outside normal communications channels to intercede directly on behalf of Robert L. Vesco in the financier's attempt to take over a Lebanese bank, the Los Angeles Times said today.

Quoting unidentified sources in Washington, the newspaper said Mitchell did not use normal State Department communications, but either cabled or telephoned the legal section at the U.S. Embassy in Beirut, which can be reached on Justice Department communications facilities.

An account of the action was said to be contained in secret State Department files turned over last Friday to a federal grand jury in New York. The panel is investigating a $200,000 cash campaign contribution from Vesco to the Committee for the Re-election of the President on April 10, 1972.

Local Officers Arrest Five After Finding Car

(Democrat-Capital Service)

DRESDEN — Three adults and two juveniles were apprehended here by Pettis County sheriff's officers and juvenile officials at 3:35 p.m. Tuesday in connection with two Monday night burglaries at West Plains, Mo.

Turned over to Howell County sheriff's officers Wednesday morning were Earl Neal, 17, Kansas City; David Lee Pearson, 18, Hughesville; and Ralph Edward Duppass, 18, 705 South Engineer, Pettis County Deputy Sheriff James Lawson said. The three will face stealing charges there, he said.

Two 16-year-old juveniles, both of Dresden, were released to their parents. The five were arrested at the Dresden residence of one of the juveniles, Lawson said.

Lawson said rifles, pistols, cigarettes and other items allegedly taken from a West Plains grocery store and school were found at the Dresden residence and inside the car of one of the youths.

Lawson said the apprehension was made on a description of a car given local authorities by Howell County officials.

Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said Pearson is still on one year probation from Pettis County Magistrate Court. The Hughesville resident was placed on probation Nov. 28 after he pleaded

Hughesville Bond Issue Is Approved

(Democrat-Capital Service)

HUGHESVILLE — Voters in the R-V school district turned out in larger numbers than they did for the general election in April and passed a $280,000 bond issue that will finance expansion and improvements in school facilities.

According to Paul McKee, school superintendent, the official vote was 389 for the issue, and 182 against. Requiring a two-thirds majority for passage, the issue was approved by a margin of about 25 votes.

The issue was narrowly defeated in the April 3 election, with 365 voting in favor and 186 against.

McKee said the first improvements to be realized through the bonds, which will increase the present school levy by no more than 45 cents per $100 assessed valuation, will be the construction of two new classrooms at Houstonia that he said are "badly needed."

Other improvements that will be made possible by the passage of the issue include a new corridor and heating facilities for the elementary school, and kitchen, lunchroom, music facilities, restrooms, dressing rooms, lobby and a gymnasium-auditorium for the high school.

McKee, who said he was extremely pleased by the results of the special election, explained that the school board was in the process of certifying the ballots and would next contact an architect and engineer to design expansion plans. He added that passage of the issue would enhance education of area children immensely.

Precinct breakdown of Tuesday's results revealed that Cartwright carried the issue, 74-72; Houstonia, 128-63; and Hughesville, 184-47. Absentees voted 3-0 in favor of passage.

Two Sedalians Make Effort To Pay Taxes

City License Inspector Bob Brown Wednesday said two of the six persons whose cases were filed in Magistrate Court April 18 by City Counselor Bob Fritz for failure to pay back city taxes have since made arrangements to pay their debt to the city.

Brown said Lloyd Yankee, 824 West Sixth, who owed $63.34, and Ralph Kreisel Jr., 1005 State Fair, Apt. 9, who owed $76.79, have made satisfactory arrangements. Because they have agreed to make restitution, Brown said, no court action will be taken.

The others, who still have cases pending, are Jim Caldwell, Elm Hill Mobile Park, who owes $137.10; Phillip Hildebrandt, 710 West Third, $68.54; Dr. Charles Orman, 2513 Highland, $63.46; and Donald Raines, 1100 West Fourth, $40.17. Their court date is set for May 21.

In a related announcement, Brown said delinquent taxpayers no longer will have the benefit of a "warning" letter telling them an official notification letter would be forthcoming if they did not make arrangements to pay their back taxes.

"From now on, delinquent taxpayers will just receive that one letter telling them that their names will be filed in Magistrate Court if they do not make some sort of payment arrangement within 30 days," Brown said. "I no longer feel it's necessary to give them the additional notice. I think it's time to step up the process."

Brown has been sending such warning and notification letters to delinquent city tax payers since last fall in an effort to collect back taxes.

"Brown, who said he mailed three notification letters Tuesday, added there are 30 other persons who owe back taxes and who will be notified."

Brown said notices will be sent to about three of four persons a week until all 30 have been notified. This procedure, he explained, will help avoid a logjam of court cases.

guilty to a charge of stealing less than $50.

Fleming said Wednesday his office would take no action at this time on the reported parole violation because of the charges pending against Pearson in West Plains.

May Request Federal Flood Relief Funds

Representatives from Pettis County road districts met with the county court Wednesday morning to submit applications for federal flood relief funds.

Presiding Judge Harry Walch said the road districts, the county and the city have been asked to submit cost estimates of road and bridge damage caused by recent heavy rains and floods.

Walch obtained the application forms Tuesday in Jefferson City from a special relief committee headed by Lt. Governor William Phelps. The estimates must be in the mail Friday, Walch said.

No federal funds will be given the city, county or the road districts until a federal inspector, accompanied by a state inspector, surveys the damage in the county.

"We're not assured of getting the funds we're going to ask for," Walch said. "But we're (the county) going to go ahead and make the repairs and hope we get paid for them."

Eastern District Judge E. L. Birdsong said the reports now being prepared are only preliminary estimates. The final report must be submitted to the federal disaster assistance program of the Office of Emergency Preparedness before July 19.

County Engineer Ed Hall last week assessed flood damage in the county at $150,000. Walch said that after the estimates are completed, the damage figure might run as high as $250,000.

Sedalian Awarded $1,000 in Damages

John D. Hawkins, 18, was awarded $1,000 in damages Tuesday in Pettis County Circuit Court for injuries he allegedly sustained in a motorcycle-car accident last August. Jean Poyer was the defendant in the case.

The petition alleged that Hawkins received injuries when the motorcycle he was driving east on Broadway swerved to avoid a car driven by the defendant north on Park.

Hawkins sought $1,000 in his petition.

Refugee Camp Scene Of Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese troops and Palestinian guerrillas battled with machine guns and automatic weapons in the streets around a refugee camp on the southwest side of Beirut today.

Thousands of rounds of fire were exchanged in the fighting. It appeared that the army was trying to force the release of two corporals kidnapped by the guerrillas and believed held in the Sabra-Shatila camp.

Political sources said the Palestinians apparently seized the two soldiers to pressure the government into releasing nine guerrillas arrested on Monday.

There was no accurate report of casualties.

Reporting from a vantage point near the camp, Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen said mortar fire and the crunch of hand grenades could be heard.

The guerrillas said they fired armor piercing weapons at army tanks and armored cars, which they said began taking up positions early today around the camp. Authorities believe the two kidnapped soldiers are held there.

The fighting spread from the camp environs to other nearby areas. Drivers braked their cars desperately and turned away. Pedestrians dove for cover.

Jensen said the firing broke out in one area and then shifted to another as the guerrillas made hit-and-run attacks on the troops.

Thick clouds of smoke billowed over the camp.

Several truckloads of armed troops in battle dress took up positions at the U.S. Embassy, strengthening an already heavy guard. An army command post was set up there.

As news of the fighting spread, office workers left for home early or rushed to schools to pick up their children.

The guerrillas said the two corporals had been kidnapped by the Maoist Popular Democratic Front, and they had agreed to hand them over at noon. But the guerrillas said the fighting broke out just before that hour.

Yasir Arafat, the head of Al Fatah and the chief guerrilla leader, told the army the soldiers would not be handed over until the troops lifted their siege of the refugee camp. Guerrilla sources said contact was broken after that, and the guerrilla leaders were unable to contact the army command or the presidential palace.

Insufficient Funds Check Is Probed

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett W. Fairfax said Tuesday his office is investigating the issuance last week of a $2,695 insufficient funds check to Pat O'Connor, Chevrolet-Buick-GMC, Inc., 1300 South Limit.

Fairfax said the check was signed April 24 by a man who gave his name as Jeffery R. Smith, Route F, Sunrise Beach. The check was issued on the Camdenton County Bank, according to Fairfax, who added that Smith was still being sought.

Annual Convention Speaker Announced

The Rev. Maurice Hart is the guest speaker at the annual convention of Calvary Temple Church. Full Accord Is Reported By Brandt

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt said today that in two days of talks with President Nixon there was full agreement between them that continued close cooperation between the United States and its European allies is necessary in a world of far-reaching change.

In a speech at the National Press Club, Brandt said that "we need each other for reasons of security. We need each other as commercial and economic partners. We must not allow difficulties that may exist in one sector unnecessarily to affect other sectors."

Brandt said his talks with Nixon were part of the constructive dialogue he has suggested repeatedly in recent years between American and European leaders. This process, he said, "could reach an interesting climax when the President will visit our continent this fall."

The West German chancellor also: —Denied that there will be a trade war between Europe and America and cited overriding common interests.

—Said the Washington announcement that 1973 will be the "Year of Europe" was welcomed on the Continent.

—Predicted frank discussions on pending issues between the United States and Europe.

Brandt said he was leaving Washington with the feeling that he and Nixon "made good and productive use of our time."

Military Program Faces Test Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's military aid program today faced a test before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson was scheduled for an afternoon appearance before the committee, chaired by Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark.

President Nixon, in a special message to Congress Monday, asked for $2.9 billion for the 12 months beginning July 1. He called it the "absolute minimum prudent investment" toward a peaceful and prosperous world.

Included in the total was $1.27 billion for military grants, credit sales and supporting assistance, and $632 million for reconstruction aid in Indochina, exclusive of North Vietnam.

Fulbright introduced his own bill April 3. It would phase out foreign military aid and credit sales over two years and allow only $410 million for these items in fiscal 1974.

"It is time to wipe out this relic of the past," Fulbright said in submitting his bill.

Tornadoes Damage Farm Buildings

Several tornadoes touched down briefly in Pettis and Lafayette Counties Tuesday evening resulting in minor damage.

No deaths or injuries were reported.

Three out-buildings were damaged on the Don Fischer farm about one and one-half miles east of Corder around 2:20 p.m. The extent of damage could not be determined. About five minutes later the same storm tore the roof from a barn on the Charles Schaeperkoetter farm about 3 miles northeast of Corder, according to the Lafayette County Sheriff's Department.

Little more than an hour before the Corder incident a tornado uprooted several trees and twisted a television tower on the Mrs. C. W. Mathieson farm just north of Sedalia. No damage estimate was available.

Extra Hours Set By City Collector

Mrs. Opal Hugelma, city collector, Wednesday announced that her office will remain open from 8:30 a.m. until noon Saturdays and May 12, 19 and June 2 for the added benefit of persons who must purchase city car stickers for the coming year.

Mrs. Hugelma said the collector's office will be closed May 26 for the Memorial Day Weekend. She also said her office will remain open during the noon hours until June 2.

Although the deadline for purchasing the stickers is officially June 1, Mrs. Hugelma said the date was extended one day to complete the week.

Miss Kinnison's friend Sam ...
... coyote finds a home

Sam the Coyote Finds Home, Love

There's a new pet at the Betty Kinnison residence, 1109 South Kentucky — soft, furry and canine.

If you're thinking of a puppy, you're almost right — it's a coyote pup named Sam.

Miss Kinnison said her brother found the pup last week while fishing on a creek near Warrensburg. At that time, Sam's eyes weren't even open all the way. She estimates the pup's age at about four weeks.

After a week of bottle-feeding (powdered milk first and now pablum) Sam is literally thriving. Miss Kinnison feeds him at about 7 a.m., noon, 5 p.m. and around 9 p.m. And, in between those times, Sam's major interest is in locating that bottle. It seems Miss Kinnison's schedule and Sam's don't coincide exactly.

"He'll let you handle him more" now than a week ago, she told The Democrat-Capital. Ear and tummy scratching are very popular with Sam but he's in a fighting mood if anyone touches him under the chin.

Miss Kinnison said she plans eventually to give Sam to the Missouri Conservation Department's wildlife zoo at the State Fair. That is, "unless I ruin him." Sam is becoming more people-oriented all the time, she indicated.

"He's just like a dog," she said.

Investment Plan Is Announced

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A new plan for the investment of inactive state funds in interest-bearing accounts was announced Wednesday by state Treasurer James I. Spainhower.

—Provide fair and impartial distribution of funds throughout the state to any qualified bank.

—Provide a flexible formula that permits the placement of funds in areas of the state experiencing unusual need for the capital resources.

—Encourage participating banks to respond to the needs of their areas for a community-oriented loan policy; and —Remove state deposits from partisan politics.

Under the plan which he has filed with secretary of state, Spainhower said inactive funds will be deposited as follows:

General funds will constitute more than 60 per cent of the inactive state funds. Each county will be allocated a percentage of the total general funds available which equals the county's percentage of the total paid-in sales and income tax to the state each year.

Banks will be chosen based on their total capital, surplus and reserves.

In order to be approved as a depository for general funds, a bank must have at least one-half of its deposits in loans and discounts and/or Missouri municipal bonds, Spainhower said.

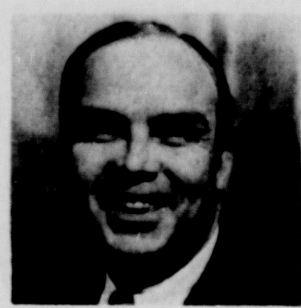

Under the merit funds program, inactive state funds may be available for investment in any Missouri bank which has demonstrated through both the kind and degree of its loan activity, an above-average service to its community or to the state, Spainhower said.

Short term funds will be invested for between 30 and 90 days.

Under the new bank funds program, the state treasurer will place an amount not to exceed 40 per cent of the bank's capital and paid-in surplus on deposit with a newly chartered bank. The total deposit cannot exceed $100,000, Spainhower said.

In order to provide the state treasurer with the flexibility necessary to comply with statutes that require special consideration be given banks in areas of economic depression or environmental disaster, Spainhower said inactive funds may be invested in banking institutions whose need for capital funds grows out of unusual circumstances in the areas in which these banking institutions are located.

Spainhower said the new investment program will be "subject to constant scrutiny." "As time passes, it is possible that we will have to reconsider certain aspects of this plan and make appropriate revisions, he said.

Q — With so many hot combs, dryers and brushes on the market, which one is the most powerful and quickest to use?

— M.S., Los Angeles, Calif.

A — Wattage gives a clue. So does the size of the fan blades (if you can find a way to see them). A quick check of beauty shops in our area revealed that most hair stylists prefer the 500-watt to 600-watt dryers.

Incidentally, a hot comb is designed primarily for styling, not drying, and few stylists recommended the combs. Also, most stylists didn't like hand-held dryers for working with long hair.

Your best bet is to talk with several beauty shop operators and hair stylists in your area to see what machines they feel are best suited for your hair and which companies give the best warranties and repairs.

A — I have some German marks issued in 1923. They have no monetary value but I wondered whether they have value for a collector. They're in 100,000-mark units. — T. H., Kearney, Neb.

Firm Ordered To Turn Over Its Records

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Missouri attorney general's office has ordered a discount firm doing business in the St. Louis area to turn over its records for an investigation of complaints.

The attorney general's office in St. Louis demanded the records Tuesday night from Consumer Discount Card, Inc., after the firm held a sales meeting in suburban Berkeley. The order required the company to produce copies of advertisements, lists of employees, officers and stockholders and a disclosure of company income and Missouri investors.

Chief Counsel William G. Cole of the St. Louis office said people who invest in the business sell credit cards to merchants and receive a commission on sales made with the cards. Cole said the Better Business Bureau and St. Louis Police Department had received complaints about the firm's operations.

Cole attended the sales meeting Tuesday night and said it resembled a revival meeting. He said potential investors were told the credit card sales could lead to an income of $56,000 for part-time sales.

Hot Combs Are Not for Drying best, all you could get would be a dollar or two. Too bad you don't have today's German mark, it's stronger than the dollar.

As for those huge denominations, the German officials say inflation was so bad in the early 1920s, people would have marks in denominations of millions, not just 100,000 units. Families had to take boxes of currency out to buy just a few eggs. Banks and commercial establishments even had marks in billion denominations.

Maybe some day, 50 years from now, people will be wondering if old 1973 dollars have any value other than sentimental.

Q — Six months ago I bought a sports car from a dealer who bought it from a wholesaler. It had a low odometer (mileage) reading, so I bought it. Now, all sorts of things are going wrong. I think somebody set the mileage back. Isn't this illegal? How can a buyer avoid this? — N.L., Parkville, Mo.

A — Since March, buyers are protected with some new, tough federal laws against tampering with odometers. When you buy a used car, the dealer is required to give you a copy of a statement which includes the odometer reading, transfer date, last license plate number and all the car's model and identification numbers. You can trace the previous owner through the license plate number.

When buying a used car, check the floor wear by the accelerator, wear on the steering wheel and carpeting. See if any carpeting has been replaced. Chrysler products odometers turn a pinkish color after they've passed the 100,000-mile mark. On some General Motors cars, color shows on the edge of the plastic cover if it has been removed.

Q — What are the pros and cons of battery additives? — Y.T., Omaha, Neb.

A — Experts claim some battery additives can actually shorten a battery's life. As for actually extending the life of a battery, there is no documented proof that the additives do any good. There are several brands out now and this evaluation may be unfair to new and yet untested additives.

Your best bet is to check with your automobile dealer or your repair garage. Most mechanics claim you can do just as well by checking your battery fluid level every two weeks and cleaning the terminals every two months.

New Warden For Leavenworth

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — Loren E. Daggett was named today as warden of the U.S. Penitentiary at Leavenworth.

He succeeds Samuel J. Britton who is retiring June 23 after less than one year as warden.

A date for Daggett to assume his new duties was not announced by Norm Carlson, director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, who announced his appointment.

Daggett started with the bureau in 1938 at Leavenworth and was associate warden for treatment at Leavenworth from 1962 to 1965.

He now is warden at the federal prison at McNeil Island, Wash., and previously served as warden at prisons at Tallahassee, Fla., Texarkana, Tex., and Sandstone, Minn.

Moncton, N.B., was known as the Bend of the Petitcodiac until 1885.

Lagoon Clean-Up

Terry Prall, Route 5, a member of the Sedalia Divers Club, Inc., and Civil Defense squad, examines some of the assorted items he and four other divers collected Sunday from the bottom of Liberty Park Lagoon.

Benches and Sled Taken From Lagoon

Twenty park benches, a bicycle frame and a sled were among the numerous items recovered from Liberty Park Lagoon Sunday afternoon by five members of the Sedalia Divers Club, Inc., who participated in a combination lagoon clean-up and Civil Defense training exercise.

In searching for the articles at the bottom of the lagoon, the divers used only the approved Civil Defense measure of swimming in semi-circular patterns.

Under this system, a line is attached to the diver who swims with the line taut at all times. A "line tender" working with the swimmer feeds more line when the half circle is completed.

Three of the divers, Judy Runge, Bill Dotson and Terry Miller participated in their first "black water" diving. A spokesman for the divers said they preferred to use the lagoon for such diving because of its dark, murky condition.

Following additional training and experience, the three divers may eventually become qualified to serve on the elite Civil Defense rescue team here, it was announced.

Description Of Jobs Is Presented

A special presentation by four nutrition aides highlighted the monthly meeting of the Pettis County Extension Council Tuesday night, according to Mrs. Emmett Fairfax, council chairman.

Explaining their job functions to the council were Sherrie Smith, area nutritionist, and four nutrition education assistants in Pettis County: Haristine Draffen, Myrtle Griggs, Minnie Jackson and Madeline McMullin.

The assistants work within the county to explain to persons how they can stretch their food dollar and eat better nutritionally.

In other business, Mrs. Fairfax said the state Extension office in Columbia is now publishing a newspaper to keep the various Extension councils throughout the state informed of activities of the state office and of the individual councils.

Mrs. Fairfax said the Pettis County Extension Council has not yet received from the state office any information about a replacement for Bill Rader, former county continuing education programmer. Rader recently was reassigned to a similar position at Hillsboro.

C. W. Browning, area Extension director, said a replacement may be introduced to the local council by the state office probably before July.

In other business, Mrs. Fairfax said the deadline for nominees for Pettis County's "Farm Family of the Year" is June 5. A state family will be chosen from among the county winners at the State Fair this year, she said.

OWLS AREN'T HOT ITEMS

DALLAS (AP) — Owls are losing their favored position as the inspiration for home decorative items, according to buyer orders placed at the spring gift show at the Dallas Market Center.

One designer-manufacturer said that anything sea-oriented, such as turtles, fish and pelicans, were the hot items.

Consumers will also have a wide choice of butterflies — they're encased in lucite cubes, pressed into picture frames and combined with a variety of natural weeds and flowers.

British Scandal of 1963 Similar to Watergate

LONDON (AP) — "Nobody told me," Britain's prime minister complained 10 years ago.

Harold Macmillan was neck deep in the Profumo scandal, and like President Nixon in the Watergate affair, insisted his aides kept all the facts from him.

Even hardened lawmakers looked stupefied as Macmillan told the House of Commons why he had no foreknowledge of the developments that exposed the affair his war minister, John Profumo, had been having with call-girl Christine Keeler.

The Kremlin knew of the affair because the assistant Soviet naval attaché in London, Capt. Eugene Ivanov, was also Christine's bedmate.

Other politicians, the secret service and certain key civil servants also knew what was going on. Some newsmen were aware of the essential facts, but libel laws barred their disclosure.

Macmillan quit within four months, officially because of illness. If he hadn't, he almost certainly would have been pushed out because just about every lawmaker, newspaper of standing and voter believed it was the prime minister's duty to ensure that he knew what was going on inside and outside his government.

British and American political structures and traditions are vastly different, even within the democratic framework they share.

A British prime minister has to quit if it becomes clear that he has lost the confidence of the House of Commons, something usually demonstrated by defeat on a major policy issue, or if the members of his party in Commons decide it's time for him to go.

An American president has to quit before his four-year term is over only if the House of Representatives votes impeachment charges against him and two-thirds of the Senate find him guilty. This has never happened.

Nixon's handling of the Watergate mess may never be judged by a congressional vote. Any prime minister involved in so deep a crisis could never get by without submitting to a parliamentary vote of confidence. If he lost it, he would have to go.

Young People May Obtain FHA Loans Now

Fred J. Huhman, Pettis County supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration, announced Tuesday that FHA loans are now available to young people for projects associated with such clubs as 4-H.

He said loans could be made to finance "modest livestock or other farming operations." Youths who live in communities of less than 10,000 population can obtain financing for small business enterprises under the new system.

An applicant who is not 21 years old must be recommended to the FHA by a club leader or parent. Further information about the new plan may be obtained from Huhman, whose office is in the Federal Building, Fourth and Lamine.

Amoco Oil Rationing To Dealers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Amoco Oil Co. is rationing gasoline and diesel fuel to its dealers, but a company spokesman says a price increase is unlikely. Jerry Regan of Amoco's western region office said the dealers probably will "have the Cost of Living Council on their backs" if they hike prices. Amoco announced Tuesday it will allocate to its dealers the same amount of gasoline and diesel fuel they received last year, although demand is expected to increase from six to 10 per cent. The dealers will get a monthly supply equal to the amount they got for the same month last year. Regan said the best way for service stations to handle the situation is to limit their hours of operation. "When their gasoline supply is gone, it's gone and they won't get any more until the next allocation," he said. Amoco is a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

Four Injured By Tornado In Arkansas

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS State Police reported that four persons suffered minor injuries Tuesday afternoon when a small tornado touched down near Siloam Springs. All were in a house trailer that was overturned by the strong winds. The injured were identified as Ely Faubus and his daughter, Vonda Lucas, and Mrs. Lucas' two children, Dennis and Sandra. Authorities also reported that some trees were downed and utility lines damaged. There also were reports of some damage to farm buildings in the area. Police said that a tornado touched down near Clinton Tuesday night, but there was no report on damage or injury.

Stohr Possible Replacement For District Attorney

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Donald J. Stohr, the former chairman of the St. Louis County Republican Committee and one-time county counselor, heads the list of those mentioned as possible replacements for resigning U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Missouri, Daniel Bartlett Jr. Bartlett cited economic reasons for his resignation announcement Monday. The resignation is effective May 15. The state Republican Appointments Committee is to make a recommendation on Bartlett's replacement. The recommendation is not binding, but is generally followed by the Nixon administration. Both the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and the Post-Dispatch newspapers indicated Tuesday that Stohr, 38, was at the top of the list of candidates.

The 'Eyes' Will Have It This Summer on the Famed Boardwalk

By EWART ROUSE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — The "eyes" will have it this summer on the city's famous boardwalk.

In addition to the regular conclave of girl watchers, "Big Brother" will be getting an eye of the hi-tech kind as the wander from the beach onto the wooden way.

Cloaked in anonymity, and secreted behind the locked doors of Room 408 at City Hall, "Big Brother" will watch not only the girls, but everyone and everything that passes through the main tourist artery of the boardwalk.

"He" will zoom in for close-ups of those whose actions arouse suspicion. A flick of a switch and offenders may find themselves under arrest faster than they can say "salt water taffy."

Sound like something from George Orwell's 1984? A modified version of it, anyway.

"Big Brother" in this instance is the police communications network. The medium through which boardwalk activities will be monitored is a closed-circuit television system that the city plans to have in operation by June 1.

The $60,000 municipally-owned system will cover Virginia to Montpelier Avenues, a 22-block, two-mile stretch that includes the central tourist district of the seven-mile-long boardwalk.

Initial plans call for installation of six cameras atop poles four blocks apart, controlled by switches on monitor consoles at City Hall, the cameras will rotate so that as a moving object or person passes in certain quarters that the plan does, in fact, represent 1984.

"The people who fear public surveillance of their actions are probably anticipating this system to Atlantic Avenue — from Virginia to Florida Avenues — by September. This would intrude in their private lives," says Mrs. Claire Ordle, deputy public safety director. "But the protection of lives and property and, more so, the protection of the innocent, takes precedence over whatever misgivings any individual may have."

Closed circuit television cameras on the boardwalk is merely Step 1 in a much bigger plan to bring large areas of the city under constant police surveillance by remote control.

The city plans to expand the system to Atlantic Avenue — from Virginia to Florida Avenues — by September. This something bad happens in Atlantic City it gets national play. We need projects like these so we can tell people with assurance that Atlantic City is a safe place."

"When it's considered that the boardwalk is traversed by more than a quarter of a million people on any summer weekend, it's our feeling that if even one major crime is prevented, the system would have proven itself," says Mrs. Ordle.

"There are certain sections of the city where crime is so minimal, it would be a waste of money to put them in there," says Mrs. Ordle.

"We have less crime here than most cities our size," concedes Public Safety Director Mario Floriani. "But whenever

Flood Effort

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Stlemmens of Arnold, Mo., take a break from flood cleaning and look out into the now receding waters from the Mississippi River. The home, owned by their daughter, is completely surrounded by a dirt and sand bag levee. The home in the background is half under water from the record floods. The river crested at 43.31 feet, breaking the 42-foot record recorded in 1785. (UPI)

'Nice Guy' Basso Is Villain

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Count Cenci has no redeeming features whatsoever. He is an arch villain. He's fun to play since I like to think I'm so far removed from that character."

Count Cenci, in the Alberto Ginastera opera, "Beatriz Cenci," in the first three scenes of his two oldest sons killed, holds a party to celebrate and rapes his daughter. Later he goes mad.

The 33-year-old Diaz, who sings the character, is tall, handsome and charming, from Puerto Rico, the husband of an Italian ballerina and father of two little girls. He went to the Met, where he has sung for 10 years, by winning the Metropolitan Opera annual Auditions for Young Singers.

"It has only been in the last few years that I have sung opera in Puerto Rico," says Diaz, whose American friends call him Gus. His parents still live in Puerto Rico. His father is a retired economics professor at the University of Puerto Rico.

His wife was dancing in the Metropolitan Opera Ballet when they met and he says she claims to have married him largely because he spoke Italian, which they still speak at home. She often appears as Edwina Villala's partner, when he makes ballet guest appearances.

The Opera Society of Washington originally got in touch with Diaz about his singing. Since it would be a world premiere and the first opera performed in the new Kennedy Center, Diaz was very interested.

Composer Ginastera asked Diaz to tell him his range and the dramatic meaning of the character. But it's no easier to learn the music.

"Cenci involves educated yelling — which is what Chaliapin called singing in general. It's not far from the truth. I do have to do some half singing and half yelling as Cenci. You have to know how to do that. If you really start yelling, you can kill yourself vocally. You have to avoid getting too involved to the point where your vocal production suffers."

"In acting, you have to know when you can really let go. Fortunately, in this opera, I have most of my extreme histrionics after I finish singing, in my hallucination scene. I can afford to give more sounds of desperation and act more with my body and give it full dramatic measure."

Diaz made his debut in Barcelona in the title role of Basso's "Medea," at Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires. He sang in "Medea" in New Orleans in the title role of Verdi's "Attila," at the Metropolitan as Monterone in "Rigoletto," and he opened the new Met at Lincoln Center as Antony in Samuel Barber's "Antony and Cleopatra." He made his debut at La Scala in Milan in "The Siege of Corinth" and at the Vienna State Opera as Scarpia in "Tosca."

This season, Diaz is taking a sabbatical from the Met. Next season, he'll be back, and sing in a new production of Verdi's "The Sicilian Vespers." "I've never sung it before. It's gorgeous. The bass has perhaps the best-known aria, 'O tu Palermo.'"

Blind Man Sells Cars In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Ed Casmer isn't allowed to drive the cars he sells, and since he's legally blind, he even has trouble seeing them.

Neither he nor his employer consider his blindness a handicap, however, since he's been selling cars for more than 35 years.

"Need a new Chevrolet, or a good used car or truck? See Ed Casmer—he's the one with the white cane." That's how the company advertises the 59-year-old former insurance salesman.

Even with the strong glasses he wears, Casmer still has only five per cent vision in his one eye and is considered legally blind.

Casmer injured his left eye in 1938 while hammering a nail. A chip from the hammer hit his eye and eventually it had to be removed. Due to the lack of antibiotics at the time, the other eye also became infected.

"For the past seven or eight years I can just barely get around," Casmer said. But that hasn't stopped his sales.

One man has bought 11 new cars from Casmer over the past 22 years.

His biggest problem is showing potential customers the cars in the used car lot across the street from the dealership. But he said the customers are usually understanding and don't mind wandering over by themselves to look at them.

Indian Blackout Imposed

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — The government has imposed a news blackout on the status of negotiations with Indian militants who have held Wounded Knee the past two months.

At the same time, a government spokesman said a rumor that federal forces would storm the village if there were no agreement by Friday "might be true."

In the immediate days ahead, we are not going to entertain any questions on negotiations," Deputy Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. Richard Hellstern told newsmen Tuesday.

Asked to respond to rumors that the government would invade Wounded Knee Friday if there was no progress in negotiations with the estimated 150 to 200 insurgents, Hellstern replied:

"That might be true. We've always considered the option of using force to settle the siege a viable one."

Talks were last held Saturday. The government said on Monday that it was trying to revive them.

In other developments Tuesday, the Rosebud Tribal Council reversed itself and voted to permit the burial of Frank Clearwater on its reservation, 100 miles east of Wounded Knee.

The council had voted earlier Tuesday to prohibit the burial of Clearwater.

The burial was expected to take place Wednesday. The other occupation force member slain during the siege also was expected to be buried Wednesday.

The burial of Lawrence Lamont, 31, an Oglala Sioux and a Pine Ridge resident, was to be permitted at Wounded Knee. However, the government said only a limited number of family members would be permitted into the village.

Also on Tuesday, militant Indian leader Russell Means was being held without bond in the Minnehaha County jail at Sioux Falls, S.D., after being returned from Los Angeles.

He was arrested in Los Angeles-Friday on a bench warrant issued after his bond was revoked. Means is charged with 11 counts in connection with the Feb. 27 takeover of Wounded Knee.

Man Attacks Suspension Of Agents

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Illinois man roused from bed by narcotics agents raiding the wrong house says suspension of the agents is like giving them a vacation because "they're still being paid."

"They've got to put a stop to this and not let it happen to other people," said Herbert Gigliotto of Collinsville, Ill., after he was told of the suspension on Tuesday of four federal narcotics agents.

The agents, aided by 11 others from local police, last week mistakenly raided the Gigliotto home and that of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Askew. Gigliotto and his wife said they were subjected to physical and verbal abuse and had property damaged.

The Askews have filed a $100,000 damage suit.

Suspension of the federal agents was announced by Myles J. Ambrose, the nation's chief drug law enforcer, who said he also was seeking a grand jury investigation. The four agents were not named.

"I have said before that people who use their badge to violate other people's constitutional rights are worse than criminals," said Ambrose. "I have absolutely no intention of whitewashing or absolving them."

The agents, he said, were suspended with pay.

MIGRANT PROBLEM

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (AP) — A total of 965 sanitary and housing violations, including widespread rat infestation, were discovered in migrant labor camps in Suffolk County during 1970.

An annual report showed 1,000 inspections at 79 migrant farming camps.

The county health department discovered 25 cases of tuberculosis among the migrant workers, 22 cases of epilepsy and 33 cases of venereal disease.

Cheap Celebration

With the price of beef going out of sight one Dallas restaurant celebrated its first anniversary Tuesday by cutting prices and Dallas residents by the hundreds took advantage of the situation. Highest price meal on the menu was a New Yorker sirloin steak for 44 cents. There was shrimp for 38 cents, a club sandwich for 18 cents and so on. The owner of TGI Friday's expects it cost him in the area of $10,000 for the one day feed. (UPI)

Gunman Killed by Police In Shootout at School

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — "We didn't know if we were going to see the light of day again. Those were a mean bunch of devils!"

That was how Paul McAvoy, 85, custodian at St. Cecilia Elementary school, said it felt being held captive with 44 pupils and three other adults for almost two hours Tuesday by three gunmen in the school basement.

One of the gunmen was killed by police. The other two were captured and are being held without bond in the county jail. The two have not been charged.

Nearly two hours after the ordeal began, Melvin Burch, 25, of Peoria, who was trying to use fifth grader John Ardis as a shield, was shot to death by police outside the school.

Eleven-year-old Ardis, the son of a Peoria alderman, said later that he volunteered to be the hostage.

"The guy asked somebody to go out with him," he said. "Nobody else did so I thought I'd better go or he might get mad."

"He took me out with a gun at my head," he said. "I heard a shot, saw him fall and just ran."

Capt. Sal Pisano, of the Peoria police, said as the two emerged from the school the boy broke away and Burch shot several times at police. Other reports indicated that Burch fired into the air.

Burch was shot to death as more than 5,000 persons looked on, Pisano said.

McAvoy said he was "just getting ready to sweep up" when three armed men led the school children and their teacher, Sister Anne Delores, to the basement cafeteria.

"I had just told my fifth graders to start doing their homework," said the nun. She was teaching an arithmetic class in a one-story frame building near the main school.

"The place was as quiet as could be and all of a sudden the door flew open and a man with two guns came in and said, 'Get against the wall!'" she reported.

The nun said he told them, "I have enough explosives here to blow up four blocks." Two other men carrying guns and sacks filed in after him, she said.

Black Man Files Suit Requesting New Election

UNION, Mo. (AP)—The first black man to seek public office in Pacific, Mo., filed a $100,000 damage suit today charging that Pacific officials conspired to use "force, intimidation and threat" to prevent him from being elected to the city's Board of Aldermen.

In addition, the suit, filed by John L. Moore, 33, in Franklin County Circuit Court here, seeks an injunction preventing the present aldermen from holding office and requests the court to order a new election.

Last month's election in Pacific, a city of some 3,200 persons, was marred by charges of irregularities and ballot tampering. Moore lost his bid for First Ward Alderman to former mayor Arnold E. Viehland, 154-

151. James Anding, city attorney and reportedly a political ally of Viehland, had sole possession of uncounted absentee ballots that eventually determined the election's outcome.

Daniel Bartlett Jr., U.S. District Attorney, said Tuesday he would send information he has received about alleged election irregularities to the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division. Officials of some state and federal agencies have already begun looking into the charges, including James C. Kirkpatrick, Missouri secretary of state.

The city was redistricted 28 days before the April election over the objections of the Franklin County clerk.

Brezhnev's May Day Address Model of Brevity, Restraint

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

For a Communist party chief in a major holiday appearance, Leonid I. Brezhnev's May Day address was a model of brevity and restraint. The harshness toward the United States that more often than not marks Soviet pronouncements on such occasions was noticeably missing.

The whole Brezhnev performance of late, in fact, carries a hint of worry that the manifold troubles of the Nixon administration, including the Watergate explosion, will have some unfavorable impact on development of better Soviet-U.S. relations.

Unquestionably the Tass news agency has been pouring out thousands of words on the scandal in Washington for the edification of the Kremlin and its ministries, but nothing of it has appeared in the Soviet press. Evidently the decision from on high was to ignore it.

In other days and other circumstances, the troubles of the United States would have looked finger-lickin' good to the Communist bloc. Here was the American image, already badly hurt by Vietnam, damaged anew by political scandal, continuing U.S. bombing in Cambodia and soaring inflation, among other troubles.

Soviet politicians, in fact, might be anticipating an advantageous erosion of European confidence in the United States. Perhaps there is pressure on Brezhnev to take advantage of this, but apparently he wants to avoid any overt move that might endanger his most important goal—development of trade and scientific-technical relations with the United States for the benefit of the Soviet economy.

The gingerly Moscow approach could reflect worry that it wouldn't take much to upset the process of improving relations—perhaps even to prevent Brezhnev's planned visit to the United States next month.

Brezhnev knows that Washington remains wary of Soviet aims in Europe. Secretary of State William P. Rogers noted in a speech April 23 that despite progress in reducing tension, the competitive nature of nations remains a fact of life and there still are "sound military reasons for maintaining our forces in Europe."

In any event, Brezhnev said nothing bellicose in his May Day address. On the contrary, newly adorned by a Lenin Peace Prize, the party chief waxed almost lyrical about the outlook for peace.

"The war in Vietnam... has ended," he said, an observation that might surprise the Vietnamese. "Serious positive changes have been scored in Europe.... A turn from the cold war and dangerous tension is taking place, toward reasonable joint efforts to strengthen peace and development mutually advantageous cooperation."

Speaking of the United States, Brezhnev said only that Moscow approaches Washington, as it approaches others in the West, with a peaceful policy, hoping to "facilitate favorable development of Soviet-American relations on the principles of mutual respect and mutual advantage."

The party secretary did give a nod in the direction of the Soviet military.

Rubber Workers Resume Talks

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Negotiations resumed Wednesday between rubber workers and three major tire and rubber companies under the threat of a strike early next week against the B.F. Goodrich Co.

The United Rubber Workers targeted Goodrich Tuesday, saying that a similar move toward The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. two weeks ago brought a new air to those talks.

Goodyear settled with the union last Tuesday after both sides agreed to a package that includes three-year wage increases averaging nearly 81 cents an hour.

"After we named Goodyear about a week before the deadline, most of the talks just sort of slowed down in the other three sessions," a URW spokesman said.

In other years, he said, the union had "gone right up to the deadline in all the talks and argued very independently. This time, when Goodyear reached the agreement, they were the ones doing the serious talking at the time."

The strike threat is set for 10:01 p.m. Monday night for Goodrich's plant in Akron and for midnight local times in the firm's six other plants around the country.

Goodrich has plants in Marion, Los Angeles, Miami, Okla., Tuscaloosa, Ala., Oaks, Pa., and Fort Wayne, Ind. Total employment at the seven plants is about 1,600.

URW negotiators returned to talks today in Columbus with Goodrich, in Dayton with Uniroyal and in Cleveland with the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

Both sides described Tuesday's talks as progressive, and Goodrich spokesmen said they felt the strike threat would not "impede our mutual progress." But "there are some changes that Goodrich would like to make in the Goodyear settlement," a URW representative said. "There are problems within Goodrich that need to be settled in a way that Goodyear doesn't meet."

One of those, he said, was the issue of plant closures—the union's hope of obtaining guarantees against plants' shutting down operations and leaving workers without jobs.

'Laugh-In' Success Socked It to Television

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." was going off the air at midseason and NBC decided to take a chance with a new comedy show.

That new show, "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," landed in January 1968 with the impact of a bucket of water in the face.

It changed the language: Sock it to me. Here come de judge. You bet your sweep bippy. Look that up in your Frunk and Wagnalls.

"Laugh In" changed viewing habits. It put Beautiful Downtown Burbank on the map. Its influence was felt in advertising, movies and the stage. Very interesting.

Most of all, it changed television. "Laugh-In" is fading and soon will be gone, but it left the tube permanently bent in its own wacky, irreverent, free-wheeling image.

"It revolutionized television," said Paul Keyes, originally head writer and later producer. "It loosened up what you could do and what you couldn't do. I think before us except for the midnight shows, television was fairly bland."

George Schlatter, former executive producer, said "Without 'Laugh-In,' you'd never have had 'All in the Family' or 'Sanford and Son' or any of the others. It brought back satire."

"Laugh-In" was the first pure television show. Everything else was an abbreviation of something else. From radio or vaudeville or the stage."

Dick Martin said "Laugh-In" made a major contribution but it wasn't on purpose. It was accidental. We're proud of it. It did change television and we take credit only that we didn't start out to. All we did was make it mandatory for the audience to keep its eyes glued to the set."

"Laugh-In" got people to talking about television again. Its rapid fire gags, many of them dreadful, were repeated by millions every Tuesday morning.

It was the first television show to truly take advantage of the electronic medium and stretch its technical capabilities to the maximum. For every hour on the air as many as 23 hours were taped and painstakingly edited and spliced together. Technical equipment built to handle the editing job is now in common use throughout the industry.

"Laugh-In" took two night-club comics who had never really made it big. Dan Rowan and Dick Martin, and turned them into overnight sensations.

It took a group of complete unknowns and made them household words: Goldie Hawn, Lily Tomlin, Judy Carne, Jo Anne Worley, Arte Johnson, Gary Owens, Henry Gibson, Ruth Buzzi, Alan Sues, Chelsea Brown.

People who seldom did television clamored to be on the show to utter inane lines. Among them: Richard M. Nixon, Republican candidate for president in 1968. Candidate Nixon asked "Sock it to me." An invitation to his Democratic opponent, Hubert H. Humphrey, was declined.

When "Laugh-In" premiered in January 1968 its 8-9 p.m. time slot lapped from the second half of "Gunsmoke" to the Lucille Ball Show. Both "Gunsmoke" and "Lucy" were in the top five of the Nielsen ratings.

NBC had so little hope for the show that it had already signed a replacement.

"We had every pressure to make it a normal variety show," said Schlatter. "The network kept asking who are the guest stars? What are the songs? I finally said, 'Let me be right or let me be wrong, but let me be different.' They left us alone after that."

Fourteen weeks after its premiere "Laugh-In" hit the top of the ratings.

It is difficult to say exactly what caused the show to finally slip.

Inevitably, the form became predictable. The rapid barrage of old gags, new gags, in-

Woman Is Charged With Manslaughter

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Marcia L. Hall, 23, of Cabury, Ill., was charged with involuntary manslaughter Monday in connection with the March 1972 slaying of Ella Mae Taylor, a St. Louis County Democratic committeewoman.

Mrs. Taylor, 40, was found dead March 24, 1972 in a residence she maintained in Collinsville, Ill. She had bruises on the left side of her face and an autopsy indicated she died of an acute brain hemorrhage.

Madison County sheriff's deputies said the Hall woman surrendered in Pontiac last week and that she gave them a statement implicating at least two other persons.

The Revolutionaries

Dan Rowan and Dick Martin, pictured in a late-vintage "Laugh In," have almost squeezed the show's last laugh out. The show is fading and soon will be gone, but its influence has revolutionized television. It was the first show to really take advantage of the electronic medium and stretch its technical potential. And its irreverent style opened the way for later shows like "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son."

nuendos and inanities no longer titillated. Instead of laughs they provoked yawns.

"The trouble was 'Laugh-In' went a year too long," said Martin. "We told NBC it was over, but they said it was sold out. 'Laugh-In' was a form and when the form becomes predictable, it becomes less interesting."

And as yesterday's avant garde is today's rear guard, so "Laugh-In" found itself surpassed by the shows it had made possible. "All in the Family" and others became more daring, more provocative, more outrageous, more thought provoking — and certainly funnier — than "Laugh-In."

It cannot be calculated how much internal bickering contributed to the downfall of "Laugh-In."

"Disagreement over what 'Laugh-In' was is probably what brought about my departure," said Schlatter. "In the original deal I had undisputed control and in the first four years I did the show the way I wanted and I was proud of it. At the point I could no longer control the show I left."

Keyes quit the show earlier walking out in October 1969 calling the show "slanted, vulgar and dirty." He denied at the time that it had anything to do with his friendship with President Nixon. He said he had not been under White House pressure to stop the sniping at Nixon because he did not think there had been any.

Eighteen months later Schlatter was out and Keyes was back.

"When I came back the writers asked, 'Does this mean the Nixon jokes are out?' " Keyes said. "I said, 'Give me your political jokes. Don't give me your political views.' "

Much of the argument centered on who had created "Laugh-In." Schlatter claims credit and said his claim is on file with the Writers Guild of America. He said the title and the show will revert to him once it goes off the air this summer.

"Rowan and Martin were not in it from the beginning," said Schlatter, a round-faced, bearded man. "The original deal was for the form. Rowan and Martin may have contributed to the success of the show more than we know. They were little known. They added a touch of sanity. They were the only foreign element to 'Laugh-In.' We never really agreed on it. They didn't understand the form."

Martin said, "In the beginning we were very lavish with the credits. No longer will we be Mr. Nice Guy. No longer will we mention collaboration. Where did 'Laugh-In' come from? Dan and I brought it to television."

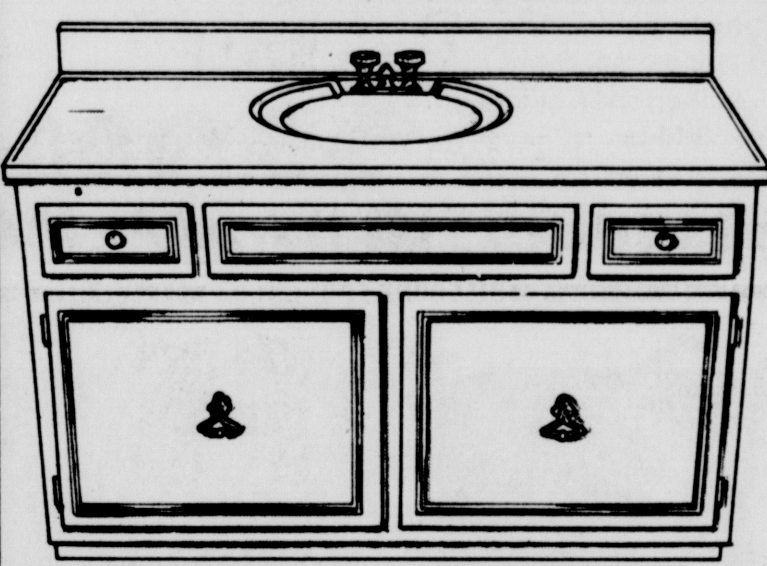

Socked To It Again

There she goes — Judy Carne gets caught once more by the wettest running gag on television, during the early days of "Laugh In." Rowan and

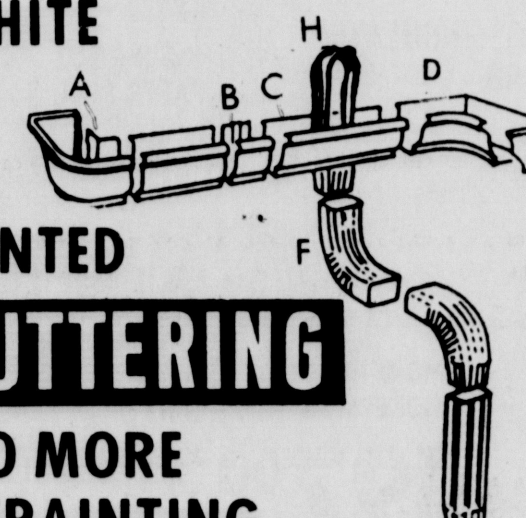

It changed the language with its series of catch phrases found in no-one's Funk and Wagnalls. And it also changed television, permanently.

Some Fear Watergate Will Effect Economy

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A sampling of opinion following White House resignations Monday indicates that some business spokesmen fear Watergate is having a negative impact on the economy. But proving it, others say, is more difficult.

"A major — maybe disastrous — loss of respect for the administration is developing just when new inflationary pressures are building," said a statement prepared last week for Elmer Nicholson, chairman of CNA Financial Corp.

The statement, which Nicholson said Monday "reflects a good deal of my views," asserts that "it will be almost impossible for President Nixon to mount a major effort ... to keep the economy moving in a somewhat orderly fashion."

But Zenon Hansen, chairman of Mack Trucks, stated "as far as our business is concerned, we don't think it will have the slightest effect. What it does to business in general I don't think I'm qualified to say."

He continued: "I think it's a damn shame to create a tempest in a teapot. It should have been handled pronto. But it has served in bringing out the true character of some of the people involved."

A spokesman for the National Federation of Independent Business, which claims more than 300,000 members, stated at San Mateo, Calif., that Watergate has caused great uncertainty and lack of confidence among small-business men.

"All our surveys show that smaller-business men had the feeling progress was being made toward economic sanity. And now it's like hitting a stone wall. It will take very drastic measures to restore confidence."

The spokesman, Niel Heard, said: "Small business feels the country is in a vacuum. The small-business man's whole existence is walking a tightrope, anyway. They can't plunge ahead; they must go with the trends. Now they don't know what to expect."

Arch Booth, executive vice president of the National Chamber of Commerce, whose annual meeting was scheduled for Tuesday in Washington, stated: "I think up to now everybody is upset and I even say disgusted with the way it developed. But there has been no effect on the economy as such. Maybe in the stock market, but it can't be proved."

Both the New York and American Stock exchanges declined comment, but several brokers indicated that the impact on prices was totally negative. One broker, asking anonymity, reminded the questioner: "Don't forget that we're regulated by Washington."

John Wright, Bridgeport, Conn. analyst and money manager, said: "I don't think it has had much effect on the market so far and I don't think it will have any lasting effect."

George Katona, dean of consumer researchers and now retired from the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, said the Watergate scandal could be very bad for the economy.

"It spreads ultimately into unconnected things, like investments," he said. "Because things are so bad, if the attorney general resigns, people rather think it is a poor time to invest or to buy a house."

"Clearly, business firms, which are mostly Republican, are downcast in view of such news and may not go ahead with their spending plans."

Pierre Rinfret, economic consultant and chief economic adviser during the President's re-election campaign, indicated that in his opinion the pre-occupation with Watergate has caused inaction on "the urgency of the economy."

Following the President's address, Rinfret said "he has not had time for the problems of the economy he knows exists." But, he added, "it is mistaken to think that lack of action on inflation is acceptance or contentment with it."

Rinfret said he anticipated economic action against inflation as soon as possible. "I don't think Nixon has made up his mind about what action," he said, "but I believe he will not passively accept inflation."

U.S. Military May Fail To Meet Volunteer Goals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office estimates the new all-volunteer military will fall short of manpower goals unless it hires more civilians, recruits more women and lowers its intelligence standards.

A GAO report says the military next year could fall 11,000 to 33,000 short of its goal of 345,000 new recruits—primarily for the Army and Marines—under present mental-ability levels and high school graduate quotas.

The GAO analysis, based on GI volunteer trends in past years, was prepared for delivery Wednesday to the House military-manpower subcommittee.

said, "significant additional potential exists."

The GAO also suggested the military could attract into uniform civilians with especially needed military skills by signing them up at higher rank rather than enlisting them as recruits.

The report predicted the Army and Marines, with their present high school and intelligence standards, would have the greatest trouble in getting enough recruits for the new all-volunteer military. The Navy will have some trouble and the Air Force will have none, the report said.

It said the military could compete with the civilian labor force for 433,000 to 580,000 women a year, but only plans to recruit 36,700 women a year by 1977.

"It is apparent," the GAO report said, "that much greater potential exists to use women in uniform."

The report also said the Pentagon has decided to turn some 35,000 military jobs over to civilians next year instead of 70,000.

"Here again," the report

Farm Work Still Slowed by Weather

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Wet weather continued to slow farm work last week. The Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said no plowing has been done for six weeks and the task is only 11 per cent complete.

Plowing was virtually finished by this date a year ago.

Corn is one per cent planted and eight per cent of the oats are in, both far behind last year.

Wheat is in fair condition and pastures fair to good condition.

Israeli Ingenuity

Israeli ingenuity and fighting power can be seen in the lineup of these Soviet-made T-54 tanks during the unveiling of four new additions to its military arsenal at the Independence Day Camp in Jerusalem Tuesday. The tanks are refitted with British 105mm cannons mounted atop the T-54s. The modification of the tanks, which were captured during the 1967 war from Syrian and Egyptian forces, give a higher velocity and accuracy and allow the Israelis to use a better ammunition. (UPI)

Butz Predicts Few Setbacks For Farmers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Most of the Midwest's flooded farmland will be planted and farmers will suffer no major economic setbacks, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz predicted here Tuesday.

"With a few good days of dry weather, most of the farmers can go to work again," Butz said after an aerial inspection of floodwater between Moline, Ill., and Memphis. "This is a record-shattering flood but it would have been worse if not for the work of the Corps of Engineers."

"I'm convinced that if fair weather comes, our farmers will get out there shortly," he said.

Butz announced that Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas and Missouri had been allocated $10.1 million of an additional $100 million authorized by President Nixon for loans to rural community sewer projects.

A Rockefeller Speaks Up for Revolution

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — We all know well that our economic system is not an unmixed blessing, that it is exploitive at times of both resources and people, that too few people share in ownership, that along with big government it has produced huge impersonal institutions which can be dehumanizing to the mind and spirit.

That is not Abbie Hoffman talking, nor Herbert Marcuse nor Ralph Nader nor George McGovern. It is not even Gloria Steinem.

If you are asking yourself what a nice rich guy like him is doing in a quote like that, the answer is getting greened — to borrow a phrase from Charles Reich, one of Rockefeller's favorite authors.

The passage is from Rockefeller's new book, "The Second American Revolution." And it is an ideological landmark that a Rockefeller (the name is practically synonymous with Big Business) finds himself accepting not only that what he calls "the runaway locomotive of change" is here but that it can turn out to be a positive force.

"We have a long, long way to go to lift this country, to realize the concepts that were the base on which this country was founded but which have not been fulfilled for all of our people," Rockefeller says, sitting in his snug 56th-floor office at Rockefeller Center. "But I think that the example of the early days of the Revolution of 1776 shows that we can meet our problems and the bicentennial could supply us with the lift factor we need if we look on it as an inspiration and not just a celebration."

Compare that with the unbridled optimism of Rockefeller's grandfather, who wrote in his memoirs, "Random Reminiscences of Men and Events," in 1909: "Our comforts and opportunities are multiplied a thousand fold. The resources of our great land are now actually opening up and we are scarcely touched; our home markets are vast, and we have just begun to think of the foreign peoples we can serve — the people who are years behind us in civilization. The men of this generation are entering into a heritage which makes their fathers' lives look poverty-stricken by comparison. I am naturally an optimist, and when it comes to a statement of what our people will accomplish in the future, I am unable to express myself with sufficient enthusiasm."

Today's John D. Rockefeller has inherited that optimism as well as the riches oblige impulses that led his grandfather to donate more than $500 million to various causes.

While his younger brothers Nelson, Laurance, Winthrop and David have largely concerned themselves with politics and the family fortune, John, now 67, has been a professional philanthropist for most of his life. He is best known for his work on population control and as one of the founders of the Lincoln Center for the performing Arts in New York. But he has also been involved in civil rights, education, urban housing and so many other issues that at one point he was actively involved in 22 philanthropic campaigns.

He has also shown an increasing concern with the "second revolution" and in 1968 went so far as to sympathize with the students involved in the college unrest that was than at its peak.

"Instead of worrying about how to suppress the youth revolution, we of the older generation should be worrying about how to sustain it," he said in a 1968 speech. "The student activists perform a service in shaking us out of our complacency. We badly need their ability and fervor in these troubled and difficult times."

That is the sort of comment usually calculated to get a member of the Establishment disestablished. But Rockefeller says that — so far at least — he has not been ostracized.

"I was a little worried that after the book came out I would be thought of as somebody who had gone a little haywire," he says. "But so far no one has reacted that way. My hope is that the Establishment is increasingly realizing that a resolution of this country's problems is important to the long range interests of the Establishment itself."

Even though he argues for a new value system, a "humanization" of capitalism and wider use of planning techniques, Rockefeller himself stops short of advocating radical measures.

"I would like to see change within the over-all existing structures, not an overthrow of the system," he says. "I don't want to get away from the profit motive. I just want more emphasis on how profits are allocated in society."

It is conceivable, Rockefeller concedes, that he is too optimistic about the ability of American society to change. There is, after all, a granite tower kind of naivete that inevitably influences him.

But he contends that even all the Americans who aren't named Rockefeller are feeling more and more that they can help bring about a change.

"While there is still a lot of apathy that has to be overcome, people are getting involved," he says. "The activism of the civil rights movement after the Supreme Court's Brown decision in 1954 showed people they can influence change. Now we have the women's liberation movement, the consumers, the environmentalists."

"It is inherent in Americans to want to contribute in society, to do their bit in their family and their community to solve the problems we face." (Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Stained Glass Expert Fears Craft Dying

By STEF DONEV
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — In Andrew Maglia's youth, a young man with creative dreams would apprentice himself to a master craftsman to learn his skills and a feeling for the craft no textbook could impart.

Maglia started his career 54 years ago when, at the age of 14, he became an apprentice to an artist-craftsman in his native Italy.

Today, the 68-year-old creator in paints, marble and stained glass is afraid there's no one to learn his skills.

Maglia, best known for his stained glass windows in churches throughout the world, sadly considers his a dying art. "They're too interested in the big money, fast money," he said. "They don't bother learning any craft, learning it from top to bottom. You see them coming out of their art schools. They've read books and passed the tests, but they can't do anything."

In the 25 years he's had a studio in Detroit, he's passed some of his knowledge on to two apprentices. One of them now works on his own, and the other was swallowed up as a designer for one of the car companies, he said.

There have been others knocking at his door with portfolios under their arms, and of those he's accepted, some have lasted a month before quitting.

"They don't want to work hard, to learn stained glass," he said. "You have to get your hands dirty. To learn, you have to watch, and then do yourself."

Maybe, he concedes, it's because they don't have the same compulsion. Perhaps they lack the patience to learn to serve the driving love which can compel a man to attempt to capture a creative thought, and make it live in slivers of colored glass bound by nooses of lead.

As you walk about Maglia's studio, amid tons of glass and mosaic tiles stacked like mountains everywhere you look, discarded shards of his works crunched beneath your feet.

"Look at all this — the glass, the tiles," he said. "I would give it all away, all of it, to a school that really taught — not with books and lectures, but the old way."

Maglia said he'd rather work with apprentices than almost anything else.

"The stained glass union has an apprentice program, but all they teach is how to cut glass and put it together. They don't teach the design, the sketching, the planning."

"All of us, we old ones who learned the crafts the way they should be learned — stained glass, sculpture, wood carving, all the skills — we'd come out of the walls to teach if there was such a program someplace, anyplace."

Carl Rowan

Lon Nol regime merits no loyalty

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Let there be no doubt that the seemingly endless train of scandals that are known as "Watergate" has finally had its impact on the American people, causing anger, dismay, revulsion.

Rowan

A lecture audience at the University of Florida applauds lustily at the suggestion that if it is shown that President Nixon knew of this political corruption, "then he must face the same treatment as G. Gordon Liddy and the rest of the guilty."

The applause is stunning, for this is a state in which George McGovern failed to carry a single county. And this audience is heavily weighted with townspeople, not just youngsters one might dismiss as "campus liberals."

You listen to people in this town talk about Watergate, about all the dirty tricks in the Nixon campaign against Helen Gahagan Douglas, about that phony poll in the 1962 California gubernatorial race that tried to make Gov. Edmund "Pat" Brown look like a Communist-lover (a poll the courts concluded was personally approved by Nixon and the man who is now his White House chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman) and you know that Watergate has brought back that cruel image of "Tricky Dick."

You listen to the outrage of people who admit they voted for Mr. Nixon, and you know that the effects of Watergate will not soon be washed away.

But the questions from students and townspeople make it clear that they are looking beyond Watergate. They express a lot of worry that our troubles in Indochina have not ended, despite all that talk about peace with honor. They ask whether there is a real chance that the U.S. might get more deeply involved in Cambodia or Laos.

The worry is well placed, because it is painfully obvious that the Indochina agreement has come unglued.

Even more ominous is this country's persistent history of throwing its weight around in stupid ways, and backing natural losers, in Laos and Cambodia.

On March 29, 1970, I wrote this about developments in Cambodia: "With unseemingly haste we have bestowed our blessing on the anti-Communist group that overthrew Prince Norodom Sihanouk while he was out of the country."

"A brief review of the record in Laos should have reminded American officials that the day might soon come when we will be delighted to have Sihanouk back in power, however much he might irritate Uncle Sam from time to time."

The Lon Nol regime that the U.S. installed and bankrolled in Cambodia has been a disaster. Our ambassador to Phnom Penh was embarrassed when someone leaked his cables to Washington spelling out the ineptitude and decadence of the ruling clique.

But we have hung on doggedly, trying to save Lon Nol when just about all the evidence suggests that he can never rule Cambodia with the support of the people.

The odds are that Sihanouk is coming back to power, one way or the other. And the question is to what extent he has been embittered, has obligated himself to Peking, because of the way the U.S. undermined him.

Washington supported the coup to oust Sihanouk because the Nixon administration was angry that Sihanouk seemed to look the other way while Communist troops used his country as a sanctuary from which to launch attacks on South Vietnam. Sihanouk did — but not so much because he was "pro-Communist" as because he wanted to prevent Cambodia from becoming just another bloody battleground.

Sihanouk was mercurial, inscrutable, a screwball in many respects. He made some exasperating attacks on the United States and they got wide publicity in this country. His sizzling attacks on the Communists got little press exposure here.

So it was easy for Nixon to bounce Sihanouk just the way John Foster Dulles rejected Prince Souvanna Phouma in Laos, despite British and French protests that Souvanna had the neutral posture that was absolutely essential. But neutralism, to Dulles, was "immoral."

The U.S. finally had to go back to Souvanna. He has been a friend and a great help in Laos, but he is still besieged by woes growing out of those years of U.S. stupidity.

If Sihanouk is restored to power in Cambodia, through military struggle or a deal, the challenge to Washington will be to accept it with some grace and try to work with him. But it would be an act bordering on insanity for us to use bombs and U.S. manpower to try to keep Lon Nol in and Sihanouk out.

Assessor off base in fees argument

Pettis County Assessor Jerry Trotter's dispute with the county court over certain payments to his office, which has been simmering for several months, now is in Circuit Court, where the county finds itself in the absurd position of having to sue its own assessor.

It is difficult to see why the disagreement should have come to this point. There would appear to be very little legal basis for Trotter's claim.

The assessor maintains that $4,610 the city paid for his office's preparation of the city's 1971-72 assessment list is rightfully his, and has retained $3,650 of that amount. On Monday the county filed suit to recover the money.

In September of 1970 the assessor's office went off the old fee system and onto a salary basis. Previously the fees that assessor's received from cities for preparing their assessment lists went into their pockets, but since the changeover this money goes into the county treasury.

When a similar dispute arose in Marion County in 1970, Attorney General John Danforth issued an opinion upholding this practice, and the general legality of county-city agreements of such a nature. The attorney general's office has referred back to that opinion in the current case in Pettis County.

The county assessor seems to think he is still operating on the old fee system by attempting to lay claim to the city's payment for its assessment service.

In March of last year the assessor repaid $4,600 to the county, after settlement of an identical dispute over the 1970-71 assessment list. At that time he stated, "I was wrong, as I found out after I read the law."

If it was wrong then, what makes it right now?

"SAY, WHAR'S OL' JOHN CONNALLY?"

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Each morning, Justice Department officials review the daily crisis reports compiled by the regional offices of the Community Relations Service. More than a third of the crises listed lately have involved school problems.

During the last few weeks, for example, Justice officials have kept a close watch on racial outbreaks in St. Petersburg, Fla., Clairton, Pa., and Memphis, Tenn. School suspensions and expulsions have also preoccupied Justice mediators in Louisiana. In New York City, meanwhile, boycotts and tense school board elections have come under close scrutiny.

The daily "crisis" reports, intended for official eyes only, substantiate an earlier, "confidential" survey of the nation's potential trouble spots. The survey, which predicts rising racial tensions throughout the nation this summer, flatly disputes former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst's public statement that the days of racial tension in the streets "might possibly be behind us."

Throughout the South and its border states, tension is building up. In Georgia, according to the crisis reports, "protests related to racial grievances generally occur in schools throughout the state during May and June, and can be expected to occur this year."

In Tennessee, "anti-busing forces are viewed to be gaining strength throughout Tennessee. Tension is expected to be extremely high in August and September."

In Virginia, meanwhile, "school officials classify more than 50 school divisions as potential crisis areas. Minority community leaders are frustrated by the lack of progress made in the schools. Demonstrations are taking place in urban divisions now and more are anticipated in the latter part of the school year."

In Alabama, the crisis reports list numerous causes of school confrontations, including "discrimination in disciplinary actions between black and white students, use of confederate symbols, re-segregation in the desegregated schools, busing, loss of black teachers."

Racial tensions in public schools, of course, are not limited to the South. In Pennsylvania, one "sensitive issue" in the school system is biracial dating of the

Merry-go-round

Justice surveys school hot spots students. "As a result of this and other unresolved issues, several of the small communities have begun to polarize into all white and totally black groups," the report states.

In Newark, N.J., there is a "daily school crisis." In Buffalo, "the educational system is in a near-crisis state. Separate demonstrations by blacks and whites and racial confrontations in the schools continue to mount."

Schools on the West Coast are also in trouble with a myriad of problems. In San Bernardino, "the greatest potential crisis area appears to be in education." This is due, says the report, to a successful NAACP class action suit against the local board of education. Two hundred miles north in Fresno, "Chicano parents and students are protesting alleged inequities in staffing and curriculum."

CONNALLY AND AGNEW: Both Vice President Spiro Agnew and ex-Treasury Secretary John Connally, the two top contenders for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination, are reported by friends to be nervous about Watergate. Some advisers have urged Connally to remain a Democrat rather than risk getting tainted by the Watergate scandal. Others have urged him to switch immediately to the Republican party, as evidence to the Republican faithful that he is willing to accept the party for better or for worse. Connally has decided to wait and watch awhile before making any moves. Agnew, too, would like to speak out against Watergate. But any outspoken denunciation might be interpreted as disloyalty to President Nixon. Agnew is fretting over how to avoid the Watergate tarnish without breaking his ties with the President.

GOLDBLUM'S GOLD: Stanley Goldblum, the husky weight-lifter who presided over the scandal-ridden Equity Funding empire, hedged his political bets by contributing heavily to both parties. Goldblum gave $30,000 to President Nixon's campaign, another $40,000 to the Democrats. While some of Goldblum's gifts are listed openly, others were recorded by their recipients as coming from political committees. For example, Common Cause sleuths found that Goldblum gave $46,423, mostly in Equity Funding stock, to the "National Committee for the Re-Election of a Democratic Congress." The committee claims it then parceled out the money to 36 Democratic congressional candidates.

Big welcome for pupils

I would like to say welcome to the families whose children might be bussed to Striped College School. I really feel sorry for the little children who have to be bussed so far from their own neighborhood, but may I say if my child had to go any where to school I would want him to go to Striped College.

You not only receive the best education, but we have always had the best of teachers, cooks, and custodians in the state of Missouri.

So on behalf of the people, welcome to our school, and we are willing to help you in any way we can to make you and your children feel at home.

The mess in housing programs

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — A recent in-house review of federal housing and urban renewal programs does not present a pretty picture.

Cromley

The rehabilitation loan program has provided a quarter billion dollars in subsidized 3 per cent, 20-year loans over the past eight years to selected owners and tenants to promote the rehabilitation of property in urban renewal areas.

Investigators uncovered the distressing fact that in some localities, overhead or administrative expenses have accounted for half of the costs of the program.

In a majority of cases, the aid did not go to help the neediest families. Well over half of the subsidized loans have been going to persons with incomes above the median in their areas. Nearly 500 went to those earning more than $20,000.

Though the improvement of substandard housing was a major objective, most of the housing being subsidized already met minimum housing code standards. Families receiving the loans used the funds for additional improvements.

The situation in the 24-year-old $13 billion urban renewal is worse. The studies indicate a substantial part of the federal subsidy has been going to land speculators who have unloaded land at several times its worth. In one eastern city local officials documented 20 instances in which the urban renewal agency purchased land at more than double its appraised value; the price paid exceeded the appraisal by more than 500 per cent in nine instances, by 1,000 per cent in five, by 1,500 per cent in three and by 2,000 per cent in one.

Participating cities must observe 1,800 pages of federal regulations. Local officials must, of necessity, spend much of their time finding ways of staying within or circumventing the rules. In many cases this further distorts the objectives.

Commitments now outstanding in federal low-rent public housing, rent supplement, home ownership assistance and rental housing programs are expected to cost the taxpayer $57 billion to $82 billion in direct subsidy payments over the life of the projects.

Yet the investigators have found these programs provided "a fortunate few with new housing while comparable families pay more for unsubsidized housing that is not new."

The projects have placed families in homes they can't afford to maintain, have provided inordinate financial gains for intermediaries and have inflated housing costs, in part at least because officials supervising the programs have not properly inspected homes nor given adequate counseling to low-income home buyers.

The federal college housing program, it was found, has been subsidizing the building of costly new college dormitories in areas where students are leaving the dorms for off-campus private housing. Largely, perhaps, as a result of this misplaced aid, defaults jumped from 13 projects in 1971 to 59 in 1972.

The question which Congress must now decide is whether the particular programs listed above are so poorly conceived that new federal programs must be substituted, whether they have failed in such measure because they have been stuck with poor management over the past several administrations (Republican and Democratic) and a managerial cleanup is thus called for, or whether the problems noted above are inherent in any federally managed programs and that many or most of the projects should be turned over to the states, perhaps using shared revenues.

Ex-prisoners Are Trained In Farming

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — While thugs and robbers still suffer brutal punishments in many parts of Africa, Somalia, which already provides training and rehabilitation in prison, has taken another step forward with "after prison farm cooperatives."

At Lanta-bur, around 37 miles west of Mogadishu on the Shebelli river, 600 young ex-prisoners are learning farming. An initial squad of 140 set up a cooperative farm on a voluntary basis in the vicinity of the prison early last year after completing their sentences.

The Ministry of Agriculture provided them with a stretch of wild forest land, bulldozers, food, seed and know-how. More than 60 of them quit within the first three months, but 80 ex-convicts decided to put up with the hardships and make farming their role in society.

The first yield of the cooperative was around $6,300 and about 250 acres are now under cultivation. The cooperative provides tomatoes for a small processing factory nearby.

"It is a pilot project," says Gen. Ismail Ahmed Ismail, commander of the Prison Corps. "Its fate depends on successful expansion. If it succeeds, then it will be introduced to all the country's five agricultural regions."

End Of A Mobster

Rod Steiger, right, plays Gene Giannini, a real life mobster, in the film "Re Lucky Luciano." In this scene he's being shot at the orders of his Mafia boss, Lucky Luciano, whom he's double-crossed. Gian Maria Volonte plays Luciano in the film, directed by Francesco Rosi, and produced in New York City.

Organized Crime Bombards the Screen

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With "The Godfather" winning top honors at the box office and the Academy awards the message to film producers is loud and clear: Make more Mafia movies.

The public's fascination with the organized underworld has not been satiated by Paramount's all-time hit — at least that is the producers' hope. Hal Wallis is currently producing another approach to the Mafia, "The Don Is Dead" starring Anthony Quinn for Universal release.

Paramount is planning its followup "Godfather II," with Francis Ford Coppola again directing and writing to Mario Puzo's original story. The film will begin shooting this spring with Al Pacino and possibly Marlon Brando — if he and Paramount agree to terms.

The Italian film industry knows a good trend and has already provided "The Valachi Papers" with Charles Bronson. One of the "Godfather" players, Richard Conte, has performed in no less than five Mafia films in Italy: "The Big Family," "Pete, Pearl and the Pole," "The Boss," "My Brother Anastasia," and "Big Guns."

Martin Balsam is starring in another Italo Mafia saga, "The Consiglieri."

Francesco Rosi, director of the distinguished "The Mattei Affair," recently filmed "Re Lucky Luciano" with Gian Maria Volonte as the notorious mobster and Rod Steiger as a minor Mafia soldier.

What is Oscar-winning Steiger doing in an Italian-made Mafia flick?

"I have great faith in Francesco Rosi as a maker of films with social comment," said the actor. "I had so much faith that I agreed to do the film without seeing a script."

Steiger continued: "I'm not about to do a 'bang bang' picture just to make a buck. I knew that Rossi was after something more than that: He shows the connection between organized crime and the political world. The Mafia would not have been able to flourish without the collaboration with politicians."

An analytical man, Steiger expounded on his theory of why the Mafia films have been popular:

"Regardless of the other aspects of such pictures, I believe that one of their prime appeals is their portrait of the Mafia as a family unit. Audiences subconsciously enjoy the portrayal of the strong father and the mother who is respected. The whole essence of the Mafia is respect for family — something many people miss today."

"It is ironic but true that strongest units in society today are to be found in the areas of political protest or the underworld."

Steiger played a mobster before — in the 1959 film "Al Capone." He was asked whether such a portrayal, as well as the current cycle, serve to glamorize crime.

"I might have added a little glamor to Capone, but I didn't mean to," he replied. "What I tried to do was show the brutality of the man and leave the judgment of the character to the audience."

Says Youth Will Be Tried As Juvenile

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Judge Dean Smith of Wyandotte County Juvenile Court says a 16-year-old boy will be tried as a juvenile in connection with the apartment fire that killed six elderly women.

The fire swept through an

The Sedalia Democrat, Wednesday, May 2, 1973—7B apartment building early Saturday.

A preliminary hearing will be held Thursday for another youth, Jimmy L. Massey, 18, who is charged with attempted aggravated arson, aggravated arson, and six counts of first-degree murder.

"I believe it futile to certify him as an adult when it seems so likely it would come back on an appeal," Smith referred to a Kansas Supreme Court ruling last year that required three youths to be tried as juveniles in a holdup-slashing case.

Erlichman's 'Plumbers' Didn't Stop the Leaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of John D. Erlichman's White House "plumbers" are in jail, one has quit without explanation, and the fourth is now a sub-Cabinet officer who won't talk to newsmen.

The "plumbers" were supposed to stop news leaks such as the Pentagon papers.

Erlichman has admitted to the FBI that at least two of the group were sent to spy out "emotional and moral problems" of Daniel Ellsberg, who had already admitted giving the secret Pentagon documents to newspapers.

They are E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, later convicted for their part in the Watergate wiretapping and burglary, and now alleged to have broken into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist months before the Watergate raid.

The other two "plumbers" are less well-known. David Young resigned his staff position at the National Security Council two or three weeks ago, with no announcement or explanation from the White House.

Group Will Meet

The Northside Citizens Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Friday at the Quinn Chapel A. M. E. Church. The nominating committee is scheduled to deliver its report.

Erlichman put this all-purpose aide in charge of the "plumbers" group when it was set up in July 1971, a month after the Pentagon papers were published.

Krogh, a strapping former naval officer and avid jogger, once worked in Erlichman's Seattle law firm. He followed his boss to the White House and involved himself in a variety of activities from efforts to control drug smuggling to setting up Amtrak.

Hunt had been recommended by presidential counselor Charles W. Colson. Liddy was paid from Erlichman's payroll, Hunt received per diem compensation as a consultant.

Krogh said he exercised general supervision of the "plumbers," but didn't have day-to-day control.

"It was frequently I would discuss with Mr. Young the various things that they were doing but it was not a day-to-day business and my involvement ended for all practical purposes in October of 1971," he said. That date is a full month after Liddy and Hunt allegedly broke into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist looking for Ellsberg's confidential medical files.

Krogh said he exercised general supervision of the "plumbers," but didn't have day-to-day control.

Nixon Striving For Credibility

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — White House credibility has become a bit like Humpty Dumpty. But President Nixon and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler hope to do better than the king's horses and men in putting it together again.

That a restoration job was in order became apparent in recent days when:

—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew volunteered that he had "full confidence in the integrity of the President."

—Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, the former Republican national chairman, declared: "Right now the credibility of the administration is zilch, zero."

—Acting FBI Director William D. Ruckelshaus told reporters about receiving an "honest statement from the President," unconsciously, no doubt, inserting a reference to honesty that, in normal circumstances, would have been assumed.

Both Nixon and Ziegler, acutely conscious of a need to restore public faith in both the integrity and credibility of the White House, have paid tribute this week to the role of the press in bringing to light hidden facts about last year's Watergate burglary and subsequent coverup.

Both men, in their own way, offered apologies for past White House denunciations of investigative reporting of the Watergate case.

Significantly, Ziegler was the only surviving White House assistant, following three resignations, directly defended by Nixon in his Monday night television-radio address on Watergate. Reporting that he had been fed lies about the case by trusted associates, Nixon said: "The comments I made during this period, and the comments made by my press secretary on my behalf, were based on the information provided to us at the time we made those comments."

Ziegler, always protective of his own reputation for honest dealings, was asked Tuesday if he would apologize to The Washington Post for harsh attacks on that newspaper's Watergate reporting last October. His reply:

"I would be, I think, remiss if I did not say that mistakes were made during this period (between the Watergate burglary and Nixon's speech) in terms of comments that were made, perhaps. I would say that I was overenthusiastic at that time in my comments about the Post, particularly if you look at it in the context of the developments that have taken place . . .

"In thinking of it at this point in time, I would apologize to the Post."

Ziegler added an apology to Post reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward. Asked to comment on one of their articles last Oct. 16, he had said, "I will not dignify with comment stories based on hearsay, character assassination, innuendo, guilty by association."

SILAS Moves Public School Up From Bottom of the Watts Ladder

By DON OAKLEY
LOS ANGELES — Remember "ask not what your country can do for you but what you can do for yourself?" Remember educational innovation and programmed instruction?

Remember Watts? None of the three is much talked about any more. To many, President Nixon's ringing 1972 inaugural phrase was merely a code announcing a cease-fire in the war on poverty. A recent Ford Foundation report was almost an obituary for programmed instruction: "Many of the early materials found their way to the book storage room."

As for Watts, isn't that where some eccentric built a crazy tower out of junk?

It so happens that at the Weigand Avenue School in Los Angeles' black ghetto area of Watts, a figurative brick's throw away from the scenes of the 1965 rioting, self-help and programmed instruction are very much going concerns.

The elementary school long had the lowest reading achievement rating in the city. Seven different principals in five years, aided by nearly $3 million in supplementary funding, had made no dent in the situation.

In the fall of 1971, the district put yet another principal in charge at Weigand — Eugenia Scott, a dynamic, dedicated woman with 20 years' service as an educator in the district who stated that she would "in no way perpetuate the downhill motion nor allow this deficiency to continue to exist."

For herself, she made a five-year commitment to the school and her teachers made a three-year commitment, at once dramatically reversing what had been the worst record of turnover among Los Angeles public schools.

That was the beginning. To Mrs. Scott, another thing that had to be changed was "traditional ritual." What the school needed, she felt, was a strongly structured language arts program that would free her teachers to interact with their students on an individual basis.

Toward this end she selected something called SILAS, the Sullivan Individualized Language Arts System developed by Dr. M. W. Sullivan of the Behavioral Research Laboratories in Palo Alto, Calif.

SILAS is a complete system incorporating reading, writing, spelling, comprehension, handwriting and communication skills. The children work with their own booklets at their own pace.

One-on-one situation...

...individualized student-teacher relationship checking their own progress at every step.

"I decided that for the program to be successful, I would have to go whole hog or no hog," Mrs. Scott recalls. "So we put the total program in for every child in the school." More than 500 students in grades K through 6 met SILAS in September, 1972.

Mrs. Scott says enthusiasm was immediate among both children and faculty. "My teachers were able to turn on the kids because they themselves were turned on," says Mrs. Scott. "Programs so often succeed or fail because of the teachers' attitudes. Fortunately, this program tasted good to them."

Because of the individualized nature of the program, she explains, teachers can see their students finding success, each at his own level. Classes are not held back by slow learners, yet everyone can learn.

One of the side benefits of the program is that it apparently solved the Weigand School's serious discipline situation.

"Last year my vice principal had to deal with over 350 children concerning discipline problems, while this year there have been only three or four cases," says Mrs. Scott proudly. "There is a whole new posture in the school with the children far more positive and really anxious to work with the SILAS materials."

A visitor to Weigand can easily verify this for himself. Rather than being a disruptive element in the classroom, he finds himself almost totally ignored. The only sounds are the scratching of busy pencils and the rustling of booklet pages.

Parent response has been gratifying, too. Attendance at PTA meetings has gone up considerably, as has the number of volunteer parents working in the school.

While SILAS has a built-in testing procedure that continually evaluates individual progress, the real proof of the pudding will come at the end of the school year when over-all achievement is measured and compared with the rest of the school district.

New Cattle Brands Are on the Upsurge

By CARL HILLIARD
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — Colorado's cattle country is shrinking, but the number of new cattle brands being registered is skyrocketing.

"I don't know what they're doing with them, unless they're putting them on the family linen," said Earl Brown, state brand commissioner for the past 13 years.

He said the number of new brands registered is running at least 100 a month, so many that his office has had to add new characters to avoid duplication. Coloradans pay $10 per brand for registration and then $10 each five years to keep them logged in the huge, circular file at the 60-year-old Livestock Exchange Building.

Brown says the new brand owner may be a young business executive, lawyer, doctor or anyone with enough land to support one horse or a cow. Or he may own no animals at all and just wants the brand to put above his fireplace or over the gate of his summer home.

Colorado's brand history goes back to the territorial days of the 1860s. There are dozens of brands that extend back to the 1890s registered with the department, but the quartercircle K, owned by the Richard Klett family of rural Bent County, is the oldest continuously registered brand on state records.

Brown said there's not as much brand alteration or rustling on the range as there used to be, but it still happens occasionally.

"As a matter of fact, some-one must be in some kind of trouble now," Brown said, nodding toward a man carefully examining thick ledgers in the corner of the office.

"That guy's an FBI agent checking on somebody who may have too many cattle — or too few."

Brown's department, with 56 fulltime employees and 20 part-time, is hard pressed to take care of its duties not only because of an increase in the number of brands, but also because of more cattle, more sales rings and more movement of cattle.

Nevertheless, the department is able to get by on its registration and renewal and inspection revenue. It funded its $800,000 budget the last fiscal year with no money from the state's general fund.

"We're straining right now, because we held the line for three years without adding any new fulltime employees," he said. "But in those three years we find we're working a half-million more cattle with the same personnel."

Every animal that's shown or sold or moved must have its brand registered on a bill of sale.

'Policy of Peace' Told by Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev kicked off the annual May Day parade through Red Square today with a speech emphasizing detente with the United States, Western Europe and Japan.

Speaking from Lenin's red-granite tomb, the general secretary of the Soviet Communist party told the thousands massed in the square that recent Soviet foreign policy was part of a "policy of peace."

Brezhnev specifically mentioned improving relations with France, West Germany "and other European countries" and added: "From the same position, we approach such states as the United States of America."

"We will promote in the future favorable development of Soviet-American relations on the basis of mutual respect and mutual benefit," he declared.

Brezhnev said this also was the rationale for Soviet detente with Japan.

The party leader said, however, that the Soviet Union must remain vigilant against "forces hostile to peace."

"Struggling for a lasting peace, we do not forget that forces hostile to peace have not laid down their arms," he said. "We remember the machinations of aggressive circles and maintain a high state of vigilance. On this bright day of May 1, we sent hearty greetings to our glorious warriors, our armed forces, reliably standing in defense of peace."

Brezhnev added that "the international position of the Soviet union is stronger than ever before" and "the security of the Soviet people is ensured more reliably than ever before."

Brezhnev was awarded a Lenin Peace Prize as a prelude to the May Day celebration, enhancing his standing as the No. 1 member of the Soviet "collective leadership."

No Laughing Matter

Hal McRae of the Kansas City Royals isn't really having the last laugh as New York Yankees' third baseman Greg Nettles elects to throw to first to double up Fran Healy for the third out of the second inning, Monday night, in New York. The Yanks dumped the Royals, 6-1. (UPI)

Lyle Regains 1972 Form Against KC

NEW YORK (AP) — After setting an American League record for saves last year, New York Yankee pitcher Sparky Lyle was in a position to be a graceful winner.

Instead, his first three outings this season turned into lessons in how not to be affected by failure.

Lyle finally broke a slump in which he gave up winning home runs in three games, preserving a 6-1 victory over Kansas City Tuesday night.

I've had to try and keep my sense of humor," Lyle said.

"After my last bad outing April 24, I asked Ralph Houk not to pitch me until May 1 because I was going to be in a commercial. If I failed to do the job this time, I was going into real estate."

Lyle, who recorded 35 saves last year, came into the game with men on second and third and one out in the seventh inning. He retired Fred Patek and pinch hitter Kurt Bevacqua, then went the rest of the way for his first save of the season.

"My slider has been flat, but it was better tonight," Lyle said. "I got a lot of batters out with it last year and I knew that they were going to be looking for it."

Bobby Murcer wrapped up the Yanks fourth consecutive triumph with his fourth homer.

Baseball Playoffs

Rained Out Tuesday

SPRINGFIELD — Tuesday's Missouri State High School Activities Association's Class AA sub-district baseball playoffs scheduled for here were rained out. The first-round games have been reset for today.

Smith-Cotton, third seeded, will meet Marshfield at 6 p.m. at Nichols Park. That game will be followed by the Springfield Glendale vs. Lebanon contest at 8 p.m.

Over in Meador Park, Springfield Parkview will meet Camden at 6 p.m.; at 8 p.m., Buffalo and Springfield Central are paired.

The semifinals have been moved to Thursday.

CMSU JV Golfers

Defeat Roadrunners

State Fair Community College lost in dual golf competition to the Central Missouri State University Mules at the Sedalia Country Club Tuesday, 18-1.

The loss, which was fueled by the medalist performances of CMSU's Tom Nichols and Gary Mitchell, both of whom carded 79's, drops the Roadrunners' season mark to 2-3.

SFCC was scheduled to host Kemper Military Academy this afternoon at 1 p.m. on the nine-hole SCC course.

Results
Porter (CMSU) over Yount (SFCC), 2-1. Keth (CMSU) over Lollis (SFCC), 3-0. Mitchell (CMSU) over Thompson (SFCC), 3-0. Cliffe (CMSU) over Grobe (SFCC), Nichols (CMSU) over Emory (SFCC), 3-0. Garber (CMSU) over White (SFCC), 3-0.

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — Sedalia Smith-Cotton goes after its fourth straight Central Missouri Conference outdoor track championship here Thursday.

Smith-Cotton is a slight favorite, but will have to contend with Columbia and possibly Hannibal for first-place honors.

The Kewpies ended the Tigers' two-year domination of the Capital City Relays nearly two weeks ago, beating out Mexico and S-C by winning the final event of the meet.

Although Hickman and Smith-Cotton have not met in dual competition this season, they have been involved in two other multi-team meets. At the Chillicothe Relays, S-C finished ahead of highly-touted Kansas City Central, the defending Class-L Missouri high school champion. Hickman was tied for third.

But in the Central Missouri State University XL division of the Mules' Relays, Columbia placed ninth, while the Tigers were 11th.

"I think if we are to repeat," head track coach Norris Kelly said Wednesday morning, "our young kids will have to come through for us."

Three freshmen in particular have been elevated to the varsity for the league meet. Doug Slagel, who has a personal best of 5-10 in the high jump, and Tony and Victor Dabney.

Victor will be inserted in the 100 and 220-yard dash events, as well as in the 880-yard relay. Tony will compete in the open quarter and in the mile relay.

The Tigers will be without Jim Lovercamp, a strong senior distance runner. Lovercamp was admitted to Bothwell Hospital Friday with an appendicitis attack. He will be out the balance of the season. Lovercamp's events are the two-mile run and the two-mile relay.

Replacing him in the open two-mile will be David Moore. Bob Buehn will run Lovercamp's leg in the two-mile relay.

The Tigers look strong in the open two-mile with sophomore Steve Fisher. He has broken his own school record in that event this season three times. The time now stands at 9:44.7.

Although the Tigers youth in the sprints is at best an undetermined factor going into the meet, Fred Washington, a junior, will be counted on heavily in the 120 highs and the 180 lows.

With Dudley Lehmer suffering from a back problem, and Hickman's Russ Gardner just off a record-breaking high jump of 6-4 last week, the Tigers may have their work cut out for them in that department.

In the shot put and discus events, however, Aaron Hartt (shot) as well as Richard Hargrave and Ken McDowell (discus) look strong.

Rick Carter has an inside shot at the triple jump, but Jack Cook, still slowed by a pulled hamstring, could have problems in the long jump and the triple jump.

Following Thursday's CMC meet, the Tigers will not see action again until May 12, when they vie in the district trials in Mexico.

Sharman Calls for Improvement

NY Knicks' Comeback Falls Short

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach Bill Sharman called for his defending champion Los Angeles Lakers to improve if they hope to beat the tenacious New York Knicks who nearly overcame a 20-point deficit Tuesday night.

Opening the National Basketball Association championship playoffs, the Lakers surged to a 93-73 lead at the Forum with just 1 minute 12 seconds left in the third quarter.

Then the Knicks came roaring back, finally losing 115-112.

"That was one of the most frustrating games I ever had to watch," Sharman declared, adding:

"I think we caught them a little tired and if we expect to win this series, we are going to have to have better movement and get the ball down the court quicker."

Peterson

Sent Back

To Missouri

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Crockett Peterson, whose newly painted and refurbished Brabham racer is on the way back to Missouri, says he's at "the lowest point" of his life.

A five-man board of U.S. Auto Club active drivers voted Peterson and two other rookie drivers unfit for racing in the May 28 Indy 500. They were asked to gain more experience before attempting the world's richest auto show.

Peterson, of Desloge, Mo., said, "I thought sure I would at least get a chance to take my rookie test. I've run three road course races with USAC and tried to make Phoenix a couple of times and did make the race at Trenton last month."

"I can't get a real reason why I was turned down, that's what hurts me," he said. "I thought about selling my cars and engines but decided to ship 'em back to the shop and get ready for Milwaukee."

Peterson added, "I'll keep trying because I want to race here."

Wilt Chamberlain controlled the backboards for the Lakers and forced the Knicks into outside shooting where they didn't start hitting until the fourth quarter. Then Dave DeBusschere and Bill Bradley scored nine and eight points, respectively, to lead the comeback.

Overall, DeBusschere was the losers' leading scorer with 25 points but he commented, "The fact we closed to within three points makes no difference. The fact remains that we are 0-1."

The second game in the best-of-7 final series will be played at the Forum again Thursday night at 7:30 p.m., PDT, with another capacity crowd of 17,505 assured.

Up for Grabs

The New York Knicks fight for this rebound as they start their comeback from a 20-point deficit late in the game with the Los Angeles Lakers, in the opening game of the NBA championship series, in Inglewood, Calif., Tuesday night. Going after the ball for the Knicks are Jerry Lucas, left, and Dave DeBusschere (22). Contesting for the Lakers are Jim McMillian, right, but the ball went to Wilt Chamberlain, who is behind DeBusschere. It was one of 20 rebounds Chamberlain pulled down, in the Lakers' win in the opening game of the best-of-seven series, 113-110. (UPI)

Briggs Guides Brewers Into First in AL East Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Milwaukee's John Briggs remembered the one hit he managed against Oakland's Blue Moon Odom last season. He'll also remember the two hits he walloped off the A's right-hander Tuesday night.

Briggs, who earlier had expressed concern over his lack of runs batted in, hit a three-run triple and then belted a game-winning home run in the ninth as the Brewers defeated the A's 4-3 Tuesday night and moved into first place in the American League East.

"I had been getting my hits with nobody on base or I'd wind up sending someone from first to second or something like that," Briggs said. "But I figured it's a long season and I'd start getting some RBIs eventually."

Briggs hit Odom's first pitch of the ninth—"I think it was a slider"—into the rightfield bleachers, snapping a 3-3 deadlock and lifting the Brewers to victory.

In other American League games, California whipped Detroit 6-2, Texas edged Boston 7-6, New York crushed Kansas City 6-1 and Chicago beat Baltimore 6-5. Cleveland at Minnesota was rained out.

Oakland took a 2-0 lead in the third on Gene Tenace's homer but Briggs then put the Brewers in front with his bases-loaded triple to left center that was barely missed by A's outfielder Bill North.

Frank Robinson and Bob Oliver each drove in two runs as the Angels erupted for a 10-hit, six-run attack in the first five innings against the Tigers.

Robinson began the assault with his fourth homer of the season and 526th of his career in the second inning and designated hitter Bill Grabarkewitz added a solo shot in the third.

Pinch runner Tom Grieve stole second and scored the winning run on Jeff Burroughs' two-out single in the ninth inning as the Rangers handed the slumping Red Sox their 11th defeat in 14 games.

Dick Allen hit two homers and Ed Herrmann added a two-run blast that carried the White Sox past the Orioles. Allen's first homer in the first soared into the double-decked left field stands and bounced out of the park. Brooks Robinson's second-inning homer gave the Orioles a 1-1 tie but Allen gave Chicago the lead for good with a two-run homer in the fourth.

Set Ban Johnson Meeting Thursday

There will be an organizational meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Charles Huddleston, 2608 Highland, for those persons interested in participating in the Sedalia Ban Johnson League Baseball program this summer.

The program, according to Huddleston, is open to boys between the ages of 19 through 21.

Huddleston said that the first tryout session is scheduled for Sunday in Liberty Park Stadium at 1 p.m.

ASU Regains Top Spot In College Baseball Poll

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State University regained the top spot in Collegiate Baseball newspapers' poll Tuesday, bumping defending national champion Southern California back into second place.

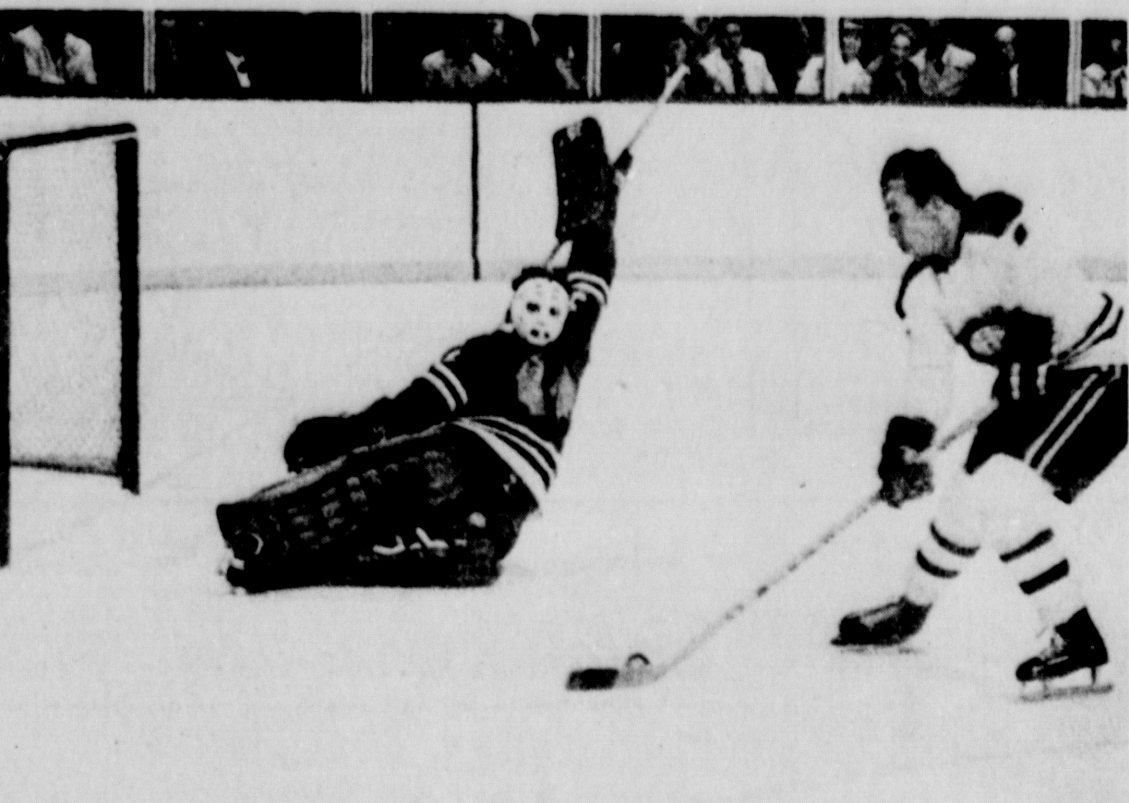

ASU and Southern California have waged a nip-and-tuck battle all season for the No. 1 spot. ASU was tops in the first two polls of the season, but Southern California took over the last two.

In the college division, former No. 1 Florida Southern closed in on California at Irvine, but the Anteaters hung on to first with 483 Power index points, one ahead of Florida Southern.

The rankings:

College Division	Points
1. Arizona State	491
2. Southern California	490
3. South Alabama	487
4. Texas	483
5. Georgia Southern	482

Esposito Stops Breakaway

In a spectacular breakaway play, Montreal's Jim Roberts (6) skates in on Chicago Black Hawks' goalie Tony Esposito at high speed. However, Esposito blocked the shot at ice level. Montreal won the game, 4-1, and took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup championship series. (UPI)

Bad Bounce Tells Tale

Montreal Takes 2-0 Lead in Final Series

MONTREAL (AP) — "It was a bad bounce for them but a good one for us," said Frank Mahovlich, who was the middleman on the key play Tuesday night which lifted the Montreal Canadiens to a 4-1 victory over the battered Chicago Black Hawks.

The triumph gave the high flying Canadiens a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series. The Canadiens could lock up the series with two more decisions in Chicago Thursday night and Sunday afternoon.

Stan Mikita, the Hawks' star center, missed Tuesday's game because of a painful ripped middle finger on the right hand suffered in the third period of Sunday's game and defenseman Doug Jarrett was knocked out of action in the first period Tuesday night when he injured his rib cage.

Money Game Keeps A's Pitchers Bat Hopes Up

OAKLAND (AP) — When the Oakland A's gathered in Arizona for spring training, Manager Dick Williams quickly assured his pitchers they'd still be batting practice this season.

"If they took that away from us, we'd have nothing left," says John "Blue Moon" Odom, who hit two home runs in 1972 but hasn't come to bat this year.

"I don't think any American League pitcher has batted yet. The next time one does will probably be in the World Series," Odom added.

The American League's new designated hitter rule, a radical change in big league baseball, will be in effect for regular season and playoff games, but not in the World Series. American League pitchers will also have to bat in the mid-summer All-Star game, but may not get a chance then because of the frequent use of pinch hitters.

"It will be awfully tough for the American League pitchers when they bat in the Series, after not seeing real pitching in more than a year," says Paul Lindblad, an A's reliever.

Fans must come to the Oakland Coliseum early to see the A's pitchers hit. The hurlers get 20 minutes of batting cage time, at 10:55 a.m. before day games, which start at 1:30 p.m., and at 5:25 p.m. before night games, which start at 8 p.m.

The competition is fierce. "We play a game every day, the starters against the relievers," explains Jim Hunter, who batted 350 and 219 the past two seasons. "It's 50 cents a man. The losing team pays, and if it's a tie, both teams pay."

"The money goes into a pool, and we have a big party at the end of the season. We had $160 in there last year."

Under the rules of the game, a line drive to the outfield grass is a single, a ball that bounces against the wall is a double, one that hits the wall is a triple and one that clears the fences is a home run.

"Most of us swing for the fences," says Lindblad. "It's easier to score that way than to get a bunch of singles."

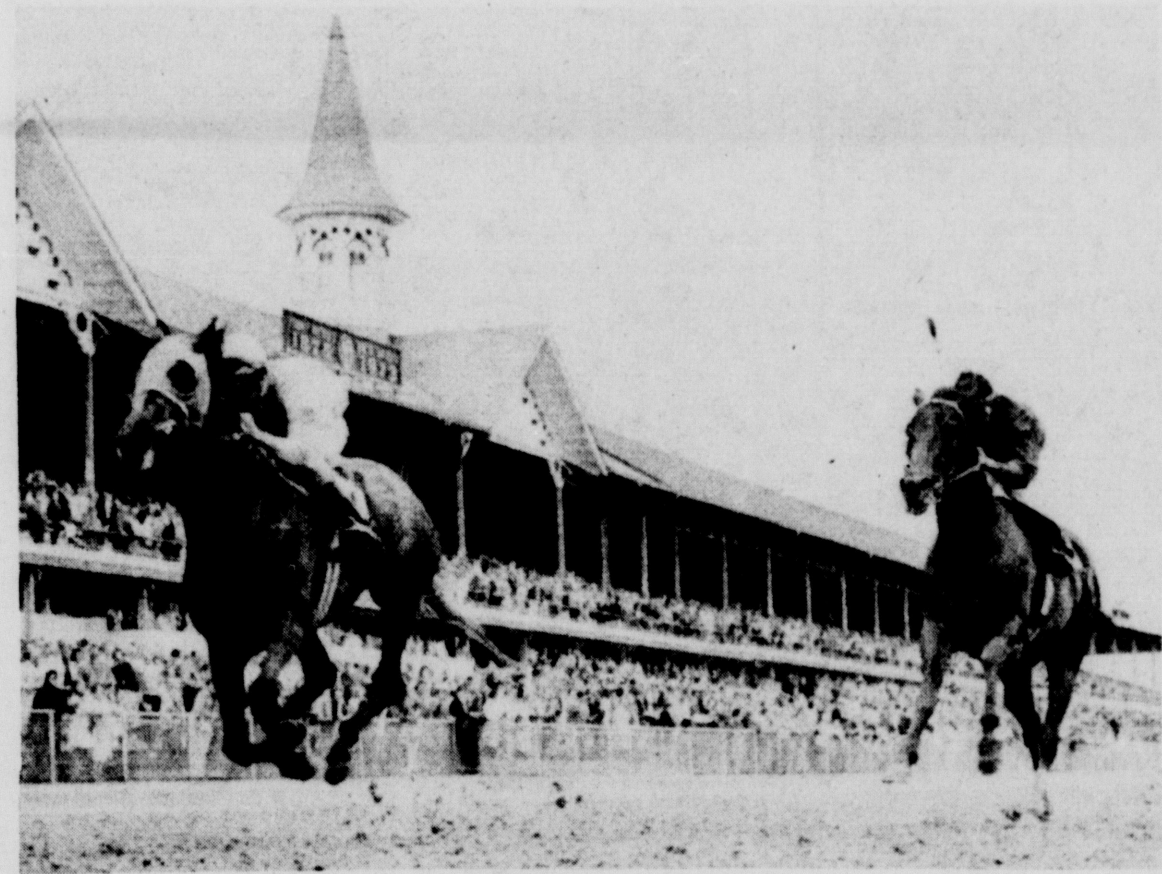

Senior Babe Ruth Tryouts Sunday

Senior Babe Ruth Baseball tryouts are scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday in Liberty Park Stadium.

Tryouts are open to all boys between the ages of 16-18 and who did not compete in the program last season.

All boys interested in participating in the league in 1973 must attend a tryout session or submit a letter of intent to David Kirby, 711 East 11th by May 21.

A second tryout session will be conducted May 13 at 2 p.m.

See Fast Derby Time

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Top speed horses like Shecky Greene and Royal and Regal and quality finishers such as Secretariat and Sham are expected to make the 99th Kentucky Derby one of the fastest.

"The way everybody is working, the race will be run in close to two minutes," Lucien Laurin, trainer of favored Secretariat said Tuesday.

The Derby and Churchill Downs track record for 1 1/4 miles is 2:00 by Northern Dancer in 1964.

A field of fifteen 3-year-olds was shaping up and if that many start, Saturday's Derby would be the richest, with $148,300 to the winner.

Post time is 5:40 p.m., EDT, with television coverage from 5 p.m.-6 p.m. and radio coverage from 5:25-5:44 p.m., both by CBS.

It's doubtful if any Derby starters will come out of the Derby Trial, which Settecento won Tuesday by 1 1/4 lengths over favored Mr. Prospector, with I'm Guaranteed third in a field of five. Owner Martin Wygod said he would take 24 hours to decide if Settecento, ridden by Larry Adams would run in the Derby.

"With so much speed you don't know what's going to happen," said Laurin. "One of the speed horses might forget to stop."

Carter Thornton, trainer of stretch-running Restless Jet, concurred.

"I just hope one of those speed horses don't just keep going. It happened with Jet Pilot."

In 1947 Jet Pilot broke on the lead and stayed there instead of fading to win by a head over the fast-finishing Phalanx.

Besides Shecky Greene and Royal and Regal, other front runners expected in the Derby field were Knightly Dawn and Angle Light.

Knightly Dawn will run as part of a Sigmund Sommer-owned entry with Sham, who won the Santa Anita Derby in a sizzling 1:47 for 1 1/8 miles.

Angle Light, the front-running winner of the Wood Memorial over Sham and Secretariat, will run as part of Laurin-trained entry with Secretariat, Meadow Stable's 1972 Horse of the Year who is capable of explosive moves in the stretch. Edwin Whittaker owns Angle Light.

Greg Pruitt Inks Multi-Year Pact With Cleveland Browns

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Greg Pruitt, a halfback from the University of Oklahoma, has signed a multi-year contract with the Cleveland Browns.

Terms of the pact announced Tuesday by the National Football League club were not disclosed.

Pruitt, 21, of Houston, Tex., was the Browns' third choice in the NFL draft but was picked in the second round because the club had two selections in the first round.

He had a career total of 2,844 yards rushing and 40 touchdowns at Oklahoma and was runnerup to Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska in last year's Heisman Trophy race.

Pruitt will make his primary bid with the Browns as a running back. He has run the 60-yard dash in 6.1 seconds and because of his speed he could be used on punt and kickoff returns.

We wrote about today's hand back in January. We explained that after East took his ace of hearts and returned the suit declarer proceeded to lay down his king and queen of clubs. West showed out and the slam could not make.

This was hard luck but we proceeded to point out if South cashed his third heart and the three spades he would find that West started with five hearts and two spades. Then if he cashed three diamonds he would see that West was dealt exactly one club.

Then we explained that all South had to do was to play dummy's ace of clubs. West would follow and since he would have followed with his only club it would be a simple matter for South to lead twice through East and make his slam in spite of the bad break.

At least a hundred readers have pointed out that this would be fine except that there would be no way to get back to dummy to lead clubs again.

We apologize to any reader we did not reply to but are reprinting the hand for another reason.

Suppose you do come down to this club ending. You can start the clubs by leading dummy's 10. This leaves the ace of clubs as a reentry to dummy for the second club finesse.

What if West held the singleton jack? You can't win them all and would wind up down four amid the laughter of everyone except your partner.

Two St. Louis Area Men Charged With Murder

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two St. Louis area men were charged with first-degree murder Tuesday in connection with a drug-related, five-hour crime spree in Missouri and Illinois which left two men dead and a third seriously wounded.

The dead were identified as Stanley Richardson, 18, of St. Louis, and Tommy Beasley, 24, Centerville, Ill. Both died of gunshot wounds, police said.

Roland Black, 24, who lived at Beasley's home, was charged in first-degree warrants issued here Tuesday in connection with the death of Richardson, police said.

Black was being treated at City Hospital for a gunshot wound he allegedly received during a gun battle with police.

Stephen C. McCoy, 19, of St. Louis was charged in a murder warrant issued Tuesday by the St. Clair County, Ill., state's attorney's office. The charges stemmed from the shooting death of Beasley in Centerville early Tuesday.

Police in East St. Louis and Centerville, Ill., and in St. Louis pieced the series of events together this way:

Richardson was shot and killed Monday night when Black, Beasley and McCoy demanded money from him to buy narcotics.

A man identified as Newton Simpkins, 23, of St. Louis, was robbed of $65 and a .32-caliber pistol and was forced to accompany the three men in a car. A short time later, Black allegedly forced Simpkins out of the car and the pair was walking down a city street when they were met by St. Louis narcotics detectives.

Black was wounded during an ensuing gunfight, but managed to flee in the car with McCoy and Beasley. Simpkins, unharmed, was left behind.

Police said Black was arrested early Tuesday at a hospital in Centerville, Ill., where he had been taken for treatment of a gunshot wound of the left thigh.

Police were called to the Beasley home early Tuesday and found Beasley suffering from a gunshot wound of the forehead. He was pronounced dead a short time later.

McCoy was arrested by police in nearby East St. Louis after he allegedly forced two service station attendants to drive him to St. Louis. Police said the car was intercepted before it reached its destination and that the two attendants were unharmed.

Police said they found two .38-caliber revolvers in the car.

Police said McCoy told them that he had scuffled with Beasley over possession of a pistol and that the weapon discharged, striking Beasley in the head.

In addition to the murder charge, Black was named on two counts of assault with intent to kill, police said.

New Breed of Clocks

The two top executives of RCA, chairman Robert W. Sarnoff, left, and president Anthony L. Conrad, discuss a new breed of clocks representing the latest advance in solid-state technology, at the RCA annual meeting in Dallas Tuesday. The liquid crystal digital readouts use very little power.

The energy needed to light one 100-watt bulb would power the liquid crystal readouts on 50,000 clocks or 8 to 10 million wristwatches. Industry sources estimate a $130 million market by 1977 for liquid crystal displays and associated circuitry.

Oklahoma House Has Reversed Itself on Pari-mutuel Betting

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma House reversed itself and approved a pari-mutuel betting measure Tuesday, but refused, for the second time, to approve a new abortion control measure.

Rejection of the Senate passed abortion control bill came despite warnings that its failure would mean Oklahoma will become a "wide-open" abortion state.

House supporters of the abortion control proposal said there will be no further effort to pass such a measure in the 1973 legislative session.

Rep. Charles Elder, D-Purcell, who led the battle to adopt the Senate bill, said he will attempt to return it to committee, to be held for possible consideration next year.

Supporters of the bill sought its passage to replace Oklahoma's present anti-abortion statutes which they say have been declared invalid by state and federal courts.

The House earlier rejected a similar bill and returned it to committee.

Rep. Hugh Sandlin, D-Holdenville, author of the House measure said proposals for a new law were defeated through the combined efforts of anti-abortion forces and those who want unregulated abortion in Oklahoma.

When asked if rejection of the proposal would mean "wide-open" abortion in Oklahoma, Sandlin replied: "There's no question about it. It will."

State Atty. Gen. Larry Derryberry said Oklahoma's present abortion control statutes, prohibiting abortion except when necessary to save the life of the mother, have been declared unconstitutional by both state and federal courts.

"We have advised the legislature and everyone else who has inquired that the law in Oklahoma has been ruled unconstitutional," Derryberry said.

"We also have advised them that there are only two remedies under existing law. One is for prosecution for manslaughter under the manslaughter statutes for abortions performed in the last trimester (the last three months of pregnancy). The other is for practicing medicine without a license."

State and federal courts have held that the states cannot legally prohibit abortion, if a woman consents, before the 24th week of pregnancy.

Both abortion control measures shelved by the Oklahoma House would have permitted abortion during the first 24 weeks, but only by a physician or surgeon. After the 24th week, abortion would be allowed only to preserve the life of the mother.

The Senate bill never came to a roll call vote in the House. Acting in committee of the whole, House members refused to give the measure a "do pass" recommendation. Only 28 members voted for the measure when a head count was asked. With less than half the membership counted, there were 29 votes against the bill.

The bill aimed at legalizing pari-mutuel betting on horse racing in Oklahoma was voted down in the House last week.

Rep. Fred Boettcher, D-Ponca City, principal House author of the proposal, said backers of the bill spent the weekend persuading members who had opposed it to switch.

The House last Wednesday voted down the Senate passed bill, calling for a statewide election to legalize pari-mutuel betting on horse racing on a county option basis.

Boettcher held the bill on the calendar with a motion to reconsider.

When Boettcher brought up his reconsideration motion Tuesday, there was no argument and the motion was adopted quickly on a voice vote.

Again, there was no argument when Boettcher asked for a final vote, and the roll call machine was held open for only a couple of minutes.

Rep. Ray Trent, D-Del City, reminded House Speaker Bill Willis that he had said early in the session the roll call would be held open for five minutes on the first vote of each day's session.

"Actually, there's no rule to that effect," Willis replied. "The speaker observed that the majority, almost unanimous membership of the House was present."

Final tally on passage of the bill was 53-37. It failed last week by a vote of 38-60.

When asked if he was surprised at the speed with which the bill sailed through the House Tuesday, Boettcher said he had talked with supporters and opponents and all agreed not to debate the measure again and opponents said they would not attempt to block his reconsideration motion.

"I didn't talk to Bill Willis about one thing" concerning the measure, Boettcher added when asked about the short roll call period.

The betting bill must return to the Senate for consideration of minor changes made in the House.

A bill to allow employees of public school districts to participate in the state employees group health and life insurance program passed the Senate Tuesday although supporters admitted there is no money to pay the cost.

The bill, already passed by the House, would cost the state an estimated $7 million to $12 million a year.

The measure is scheduled to go to the Senate-House conference committee on appropriations.

In other Senate action Tuesday, a bill to provide a new billboard removal act in compliance with federal regulations failed by a vote of 23-11.

However, the billboard measure was held on the calendar by a motion to reconsider. Sen. Gene Stipe, D-McAlester, said the legislature must pass the bill or the state will lose federal highway money.

Substitute Reorganization Bill Ready for Floor Action

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A House committee substitute for the Senate bill reorganizing the executive branch of state government is now ready for floor action in the House after committee approval Tuesday.

Reorganization is regarded by many legislators as the most important issue facing lawmakers this session.

Legislators are under the gun of a constitutional amendment approved by the voters in August to implement the restructuring of more than 400 state agencies into 13 departments and the Office of Administration.

The House committee substitute is similar to the original bill introduced in the House.

The bill seeks to realign the executive agencies using legal machinery which transfers programs into the new departments by types of authority and responsibility.

responsibility.

The House committee substitute bill includes the zero base budgeting provisions of a Senate bill vetoed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond last month.

Zero base budgeting would require state agencies to justify their increases in spending over the previous year from a zero dollar base.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton and sponsor of the Senate reorganization bills, said Tuesday while he favors the concept of zero base budgeting, he fears including the proposal in reorganization will give Bond a reason to veto the bill.

The Senate voted to override Bond's veto. The House did not.

The House version of reorganization will almost certainly undergo significant revision on the House floor as did the Senate bill which contained 38 amendments before it was finally passed.

The final version of reorganization will also almost certainly be the result of a joint House-Senate conference committee.

Among the differences that will probably fall to that committee to resolve are the basic methods of reorganization and the amount of control the legislature will maintain over the executive agencies.

The Senate version of the bill, longer of the two bills by about 200 pages, details many of the changes in the laws that will be necessary to restructure the government.

The House bill sets up a system of "transfers" leaving many of the details to department heads.

Critics of the House bill say it will require too much revision legislation in later sessions.

Critics of the Senate bill say it hinders reorganization by detailing too many of the specific changes disrupting efficient administrative change.

Farmers Still Stalled By Severe Weather

WASHINGTON (AP) — Severe weather, including record flooding in much of the Southern cotton area, continues to stall farmers and cast serious shadows over prospects for crop production this year, say Agriculture Department analysts.

"Spring plowing of land intended for corn and soybeans in the north-central states is only about 30 per cent done, compared to about 75 per cent a year earlier," the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather report.

Extremely heavy rains and flooding of "record proportions" continued to plague Southern cotton growers last week, the report said. Of about 11 million acres estimated as flooded, some 8.5 million are in Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana.

"Cotton land preparation and planting has been and continues to be badly delayed, especially in the flooded areas of the Mississippi River delta, where time remaining to plant cotton is running out," the report said.

Less than two per cent of the cotton acreage was planted in Mississippi by last weekend, compared with about 41 per cent normally.

"Almost no cotton is planted in Arkansas, compared to the normal 33 per cent, and less than one per cent is planted in Louisiana versus 80 per cent last year," the report said.

Officials said wet weather delayed Midwestern corn planting last year until about May 15. The bulk of the area's corn then was planted during the last two weeks of May.

"Corn Belt farmers are hoping for six to 10 days of dry weather to permit full scale plowing and planting," the USDA report said. "Corn planting started and advanced to five per cent in Iowa... but was limited to well-drained soils. Minnesota corn acreage is four per cent planted, ahead of normal."

Soybeans usually are planted later than corn, the report noted. That means farmers can be expected to turn first to corn as soon as fields dry.

Winter wheat, planted last fall, was reported as making good growth in the southern Great Plains although cool weather has slowed maturing.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shipments of commercial fertilizer from manufacturers are running slightly ahead of a year ago, but deliveries to farmers are lagging in some important areas, says the Fertilizer Institute.

The industry organization says its index showed a four per cent gain in "domestic disappearance" during the nine months from July 1 last year through March.

"The nation's water-soaked Midwest and southcentral states, however, have the fertilizer industry and agriculture in general tied in knots," Edwin M. Wheeler, institute president, said today in a report.

Midwestern grain farmers use nearly half of the nation's commercial fertilizer, Wheeler said. The next few weeks will be "critical" for the industry and farmers, he said.

"Although movement of fertilizer supplies to the farm is ahead of last year in several sections, noticeably in the northeast and in several north-central states, it is far behind in the Midwest," Wheeler said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Olives will be in shorter supply this year for salads, martinis and other table uses, according to the Agriculture Department.

Table olive production in Greece and Spain totaled 171,900 tons last year down 23 per cent from 1971. The U.S. crop also was down last year, some 27,000 tons compared with 57,000 in 1971, according to a report by the Foreign Agricultural Service.

Dean's Replacement Old Nixon Friend

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Nixon needed a friend to replace White House counsel John W. Dean III in the Watergate shakeup, he didn't have to look far.

Waiting in the wings was Leonard Garment, a member of Nixon's inner circle—one-time partner in Nixon's New York law firm and a veteran of the President's campaigns since 1966.

Garment has played a low-profile, effective role in the White House ever since the early days of the Nixon administration. He is more liberal than ousted aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, who overshadowed him.

A one-time jazz clarinetist with the Woody Herman Band, he is probably better known around Washington as Nixon's liaison with the arts than as a legal expert.

But Garment's assignments as the President's special consultant have tapped both his legal and artistic talents.

They have ranged from dealing with militant Indians who took over Alcatraz to arranging a White House musical salute to jazz musician Duke Ellington.

Nixon and Garment first met in 1965 when Nixon joined the New York law firm of Mudge, Rose, Guthrie and Alexander. Garment had been a member of the firm since his graduation from Brooklyn College in 1949 and a partner since 1957.

It was with a nucleus of friends, including members of the law firm, that Nixon began his political comeback after losses to John F. Kennedy in 1960 and to California Gov. Edmund Brown in 1962. Garment was among them and is credited with recommending a new member of the firm, John N. Mitchell, as a campaign manager for Nixon's 1968 presidential bid.

In the 1968 campaign, Garment was among Nixon's closest advisers, working with his speechwriters, advising on use of the media and acting as a talent scout and promoter for Nixon.

When Nixon became president, Garment went back briefly to the law firm while Mitchell became attorney general. But, in May 1969, Garment was named special consultant to the President with responsibilities in areas from civil rights to the arts.

There, he was far less influential than Haldeman and Ehrlichman. He played his part with missions to placate the Indians, meeting protesters at the White House gate and visiting U.S. bases in Europe to check on racial problems.

The son of immigrants, born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Garment will celebrate his 49th birthday May 11 in a suddenly spotlighted White House role. Along with Elliot L. Richardson, Nixon's nominee for attorney general, Garment has been given the assignment to pursue justice fairly and fully and "to speed truth's discovery" in the Watergate scandal.

PLANT UTILIZES SHELLFISH REMAINS

SEATTLE (AP) — The remains of shellfish, which have long presented the seafood industry with a waste product disposal problem, are being salvaged to produce a commercial product for a variety of industries.

A small pilot plant operated near here by Food, Chemical and Research Laboratories turns out the cellulose-like substance called chitin and offers it to researchers who have found possibilities in it for use in paper, medicine, baby food, textile, paint, fabric, food, adhesive, film and other industries.

Backed by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the new process will go a long way, hopefully, toward providing an alternative to dumping the remains of lobsters, shrimp and crabs in the ocean and thus causing pollution.

Women Seeking Psychiatric Help Turning to Feminists

NEW YORK (AP) — Women seeking psychiatric help increasingly are turning these days to psychotherapists who call themselves feminists. Their reason: dissatisfaction with male chauvinism at $50 an hour on a analyst's couch.

"Women have always been analyzed in terms of rigid sex roles and male needs," said Dr. Susan Schad-Somers, who practices in New York. "A feminist therapist would ask: 'Does this woman define herself in terms of her own needs?'"

Dr. Somers and several other feminists and therapists have set up the Women's Psychiatric Referral Center that circulates the names of dozens of acceptable therapists—male and female—and arranges interviews for interested women. Dr. Somers says that, since the service started Sept. 10, about 20 women have called each day to request assistance.

A list of other referral centers is kept up to date by Dr. Annette Brodsky of the Association for Women in Psychology, who reports that feminist therapy is available through centers in a number of states, including Arizona, California, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania and Texas.

According to studies by the National Institute of Mental Health, women outnumber men 3-2 in private psychotherapy. More women than men are admitted to hospitals for psychiatric care and remain there longer as patients.

Some feminists—like Dr. Phyllis Chesler, author of Women and Madness—say a double standard of mental health always has been applied to men and women and definitions of "normal" behavior in women have been based on commonly accepted views of the female role.

"The danger of traditional therapy," says Dr. Oline, a psychologist in New York, "is that it starts out with certain ideas like women have an instinct for motherhood, that they are natural nurturers, that women are passive and receptive."

The advantage of feminist therapy, says Dr. Oline, is that it gives a woman the widest possible range of options to find herself.

"Before, many therapists would say that the definition of health is getting into a sexual relationship with a man. Women do have strong emotional needs for tenderness and affection, but now they are learning how to fill those needs without becoming dependent on men in the old ways."

Feminist therapists say they also are trying new approaches with their patients, making it more of a partnership, treating the woman as a peer. The therapists also charge considerably less than other professionals, as low as $15 a visit.

Traditional Freudian analysts, however, are skeptical of feminist therapy.

"I think the feminists have gone to an extreme and are just as likely to be one-sided in their views as the people they accuse of being one-sided," said Dr. Nathaniel Ross, clinical professor of psychiatry at Downstate Medical Center in New York. "Anatomy and biology are powerful influences in life. A woman is really denying a part of herself if she doesn't want motherhood and marriage. Let's face it, men and women really are different; and I say, vive la difference."

Farm Roundup

Farm Price Index Drops 1.5 Per Cent

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's farm price index dropped 1.5 per cent last month, the first decline in a year, largely because of lower prices for livestock and milk.

The Agriculture Department Monday said that for the month ended April 15 the over-all index was still 32 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Higher prices for wheat, broiler chickens, lettuce and onions partly offset declines for hogs, cattle, calves, lambs, milk and strawberries, the Crop Reporting Board said.

The meat animal index dropped five per cent. Beef cattle averaged $42.40 per hundred weight, down $1.20 from a record high set in March. Hogs were $35.10 per hundredweight, off $3.20 from a record peak in March.

Milk for the fluid market averaged $6.67 per hundred weight, down 17 cents from March but still 54 cents more than a year earlier. Most of the drop was attributed to a seasonal decline in the fat content of milk.

The poultry and egg index rose three per cent during the month, including a boost for broilers to 25.5 cents per pound, up 2.2 cents from March. Turkeys, averaging 31 cents per pound, gained 2.6 cents.

Egg prices were down slightly however, averaging 46.9 cents per dozen. That was a decline of three-tenths of one cent.

Wheat rose to $2.15 per bushel, up 9 cents from March but still was under the high of $2.38 of last January. Rice jumped to a record of $8.23 per hundred weight, up 25 cents from March.

Commercial vegetables rose 13 per cent over-all from March, including gains for lettuce, onions, tomatoes and green peppers. Lower prices were reported for sweet corn and cucumbers.

The dip of 1.5 per cent in the entire index was the first since April 1972. Prices held steady last September but then climbed the next six months, including the boost of 7 per cent in March.

Prices farmers pay out for goods and services rose 1.5 per cent in April and averaged 12 per cent more than a year earlier. Officials said that higher wage rates and prices for seeds and fertilizer were factors in the gain.

The historical parity ratio, based on a 1910-14 formula, dropped in April to 83 per cent from 86 in March. A year earlier the ratio, a yardstick for comparing farm prices and costs, was 71 per cent.

Bond Issues Approved In Elections

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some bond issues were approved in special local elections in Missouri Tuesday.

In Columbia, voters approved a $3.8 million industrial revenue bond proposal by a vote of 3,147 to 1,655. It needed a four-sevenths majority. The bond money will be used to build and equip a plastic pipe manufacturing plant for the Clow Corp. of Oak Brook, Ill. The plant is expected to employ about 80 workers.

Only 18 per cent of the registered voters turned out for Columbia's first election in industrial revenue bonds.

A $495,000 bond issue was approved for expansion of the Good Shepherd nursing home for aged at Versailles. The home's capacity of 60 beds will be doubled to 120 beds. The vote was 830 to 175.

Voters of the Climax Springs School District rejected a proposed 71-cent increase in the school tax levy which would have made the levy $3.36 per $100 assessed valuation. The vote was 240 against and 100 in favor.
